"Let us haste to hear it,
And call the noblest to the audience."

Al Smith smashes his way to the most triumphant victory over the Republican party of his political career as the constitutional amendments he favors win and those he opposed are buried under an avalanche. The greatest vote-getter since Andy Jackson stands at the threshold of the national arena.

What happened in New York yesterday means that the next Republican candidate for President in this country better lay in a pair of seven-league boots.

We can see a farmer right now receiving a certificate for the difference between the price of a dozen eggs and the world-level value, plus the tariff, and negotiating a loan on the debenture at the National City Bank.

Col. Lindbergh pilots one of the new Fords and makes a successful landing.

The Republican city council of Indianapolis elects a Democrat as mayor. Any port in a storm.

We trust that Chicago doesn't learn that Mayor Nathan Hale Thompson was heard around Washington yesterday speaking, at times, the English language.

The advocates of tax reduction who complain of the impolite treatment accorded by Ways and Means just ought to see how a committee of Congress brouhats a delegation of petitioners whose expenses are paid by the Antislavery League.

There is this much to be said in favor of Mexican baseball—the firing squad knows what to do to the umpire.

The Ways and Means committee—which has no existence, for every man on it is merely a Representative-elect to the Seventieth Congress—wants to know who is paying the expenses of the witnesses appearing before it, and for that matter, who's paying the expenses incurred by the committee?

Speaking of tearing down the historic if dilapidated structures in the Mall Triangle, anybody having a photograph of the old Chronicle Building, 914 Pennsylvania avenue, or photographs of the south side of the Avenue between Ninth and Tenth, period the late Seventies and early Eighties, will learn something to advantage by sending or bringing it in to the Post-Script column. It's in some old album or a box up in the attic, so hop to it!

"Miss Flora McIlmsey, of Madison Square,
Has made three separate journeys to Paris,
And her father assures me each time she was there
That she and her friend, Mrs. Harris,
Spent six consecutive weeks, without stopping,
In one continuous round of shopping."

We trust that M. Paul Poirer will not be offended by the "buy in Washington" movement, but the truth of the matter is that that is just what Monsieur is over here. Paris has lost its grip as the style center of the world, and the Washington woman not only can buy snappier clothes in F street than she can in the Rue de la Paix, but what is more to the point, she has found it out. Miss Flora McIlmsey now patronizes the home town.

Millicent Rogers' new husband, it seems, has definitely retired the once universally believed old adage, "lucky at cards, unlucky in love."

In the jungles of Nicaragua a couple of young Marines stand off a gang of 30 outlaws until their ammunition runs out, and then die like Americans. It'll make you prouder of yourself to read this news story, beside which modern adventure fiction seem insipid.

The Y. W. C. A. fund drive ends tonight.
TK collector homeward plods his weary way.
We're going to paint all of those green blinds white,
Or have another drive some other day.

There being no opposition in the field, Mississippi Democrats sweep the State, a record-breaking vote of 268 being cast. This proves that Senator Borah's contention that the Fifteenth amendment isn't being nullified in wet-drinking dry-voting Dixie is as sound as a nut.

Hammy Moore! Hammy Moore!
Oh, we'll never see poor Hammy any more!

Hello! Telephone girl loses her race to be Mayor of Concord, Sour grapes!
Col. Rogers, who has been Slamed once, takes precautions against receiving another jolt.

WITNESSES AT TAX HEARING QUESTIONED ON THEIR EXPENSES

Satterwhite Asks Oath if House Committee Is Suspicious.

SCENE STORMY WHEN CHARGES ARE MADE

Coolidge Ready for Repeal of Inheritance Levy, but Holds It Legitimate.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts of House ways and means committee members to trace the source of money used to defray expenses of witnesses advocating repeal of the Federal inheritance tax were met yesterday with a request from witnesses themselves that if anything appeared wrong an investigation under oath be ordered.

While this was developing at the Capitol the advisability of retaining the levy came in for discussion at both the White House and Treasury. At the executive offices it was said President Coolidge felt the estate tax was legitimate levy, but that he was prepared to sign a bill for its repeal.

The Treasury also took occasion to reiterate its arguments in favor of repeal of the tax and, in addition, Unprosperous Mills again warned that proposed total tax reductions should not exceed $225,000,000. He said the department, in setting the limit, had been liberal in its estimates and that a compromise cut of $325,000,000, as suggested in some quarters, undoubtedly would be felt in a deficit.

The meeting of the House committee with the inheritance tax question up for discussion developed into a stormy session. At one point Chairman Green declared for order, declaring proponents of repeal of the inheritance levy had "packed" the committee room.

Charges Room Is "Packed."
The witness at that time, John H. Kirby, Houston, Tex., president of the National Council of State Legislatures, had just concluded a defense of the rights of States to levy estate taxes. "This room has been packed by your organization," remarked Green. "We know how they are gathered."

As the session proceeded, each witness was questioned closely as to the source of money defraying his expenses, with Representative Rainey, Democrat, Illinois, taking the lead in the quizzing.

He examined William H. Blodgett, tax commissioner for Connecticut, as to who paid for his breakfast and the taxicab he used in reaching the Capitol. Blodgett replied he did not know who had paid the bill, but hoped the National Council of State Legislatures had footed it.

Another witness, Lee Satterwhite, former speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, testified that after the legislature in that State had adopted a resolution authorizing him to act as

THEATER IS WRECKED BY SERIES OF BOMBS

Hammond, Ind., Is Rocked by Explosion; Church Is Also Damaged.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The State Theater Building, in the heart of Hammond's business district, housing a dance hall and an auditorium seating 3,500 persons, was wrecked today by an explosion, which the police attributed to several bombs. No one was injured.

The blast rocked the city and left the ornate theater, part of the State street block, costing $1,500,000, a twisted mass of wreckage. The loss was estimated at nearly $700,000.

The theater, a combination vaudeville and movie house, was so nearly demolished that a syndicate of Hammond business men owning it said it probably would have to be entirely rebuilt.

The theater management reported there had been no labor trouble of any kind and said that no threats had been received.

Part of the roof of All Saints' Catholic Church, across the street, was destroyed by the impact of the blast.

Forbush's 40-Mile Hike in Flood Vain

Canandaigua, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The Rev. Darius B. Forbush, of this city, tramped 40 miles from Rutland, Vt., to Canaan, N. H., through the flood regions, to search for his wife, missing since October 19, it was learned here today. Mrs. Forbush disappeared in Washington.

Mr. Forbush, in a telegram to Mayor William J. MacFarland, related how he was stranded in his automobile near Rutland by the swollen streams and then started his long walk to Canaan to run down a report that a woman answering his wife's description was seen near the Forbush summer home two weeks ago.

BOY TELLS OF ROBBING BLIND GRANDMOTHER, 73

'Slugged' Her, Says Prisoner, Confessing Stealing $27,000 in Cash and Stocks.

DEATH IS KEPT SECRET

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The brutal murder and robbery of an aged woman recluse of Zwingle, Iowa, was solved here today, police believed, with arrest of two nattily dressed youths who said they were Leonard Cota, 18 years old, of Bennettville, Iowa, and Harold Kramer, 19, of Great Falls, Mont. Police found $27,000 in cash and a large amount in securities in their hotel room.

The youths admitted, police said, that they slugged, bound and gagged a Mrs. McKittick, 73, Cota's grandmother, and robbed her of cash and securities the night of November 1. Word was received from police at Dubuque, Iowa, that Mrs. McKittick was found strangled to death in her cottage at Zwingle, near there. Cota said his grandmother was breathing when he left her. Police did not tell the youths that Mrs. McKittick is dead.

According to the confessions, Cota and Kramer planned to rob the woman after the chance discovery by Cota three months ago that his grandmother had a fortune hid in her cottage.

"I sent for Kramer to help," Cota said. "I bought a second-hand automobile for $25. On the night of November 1, Kramer and I drove to my grandmother's cottage, on the outskirts of Zwingle. I knocked and said, 'Grandmother, this is Leonard.' My grandmother was almost blind. She said, 'I don't know whether it is you or not, but I'll let you in.' She opened the door and I grabbed her.

"I said, 'You're a miser. You've got lots of money. Why don't you burn electric lights instead of candles?' I slugged her and she fell. Kramer and I had brought towels with us. We tied her up and gagged her. We had brought three suit cases to put the money in.

"We found the money in bureau drawers, in packages. We didn't stop to count it. We went over to her to see if she was breathing. She was breathing when we left."

Indian Chief, 106, Votes Smith Ticket

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Big Chief White Horse, Eagle, who claims to be 106 years old, died in full regalia of his rank, attracted attention when he voted today. He proudly proclaimed that he had voted the straight Democratic ticket because of "my great admiration for my beloved friend, Gov. Smith."

The chief said he had cast his first presidential vote for Gen. Grant in Virginia. He found the new voting machines easy, he said, because he had used them before in California.

Chauncey M. Depew, 93 years old, was one of the early voters. The former United States senator remarked that he was now a veteran of 72 elections.

Woman, 95, Demands Alimony Until Rewed

Denver, Colo., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—With an eye to the future, Mrs. Rosi Vitello, 95 years old, asks $100 a month alimony as long as she remains unmarried. She brought suit for divorce against her 55-year-old husband, Francisco Perello, charging nonsupport, cruelty and fraud, and entered her conditional bid for the alimony. They were married in 1926.

Police Lieutenant Gets Lift; Is Robbed

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—James A. Hamilton, a police lieutenant, was beaten and robbed of money and jewelry today by three men with whom he accepted an automobile ride. Hamilton, who was not in uniform, said he had set out on foot to get his automobile when he was offered a ride by the three men. They drove him about the city for an hour and a half before robbing him, he said, leaving him unconscious on the sidewalk.

CITIZENS ADVISORY COUNCIL ABANDONS ITS INFORMAL OATH

Surrenders Its Unofficial Induction to Office Under Attack.

HAD BEEN SCORED BY TRADE BODIES

Declares Ceremony Valuable as Symbol, but Not Important to Work.

A flank attack was made by the citizens' advisory council last night in the warfare between the local trade and other bodies and the council. The seven men composed and sent an open letter to the District Commissioners, characterizing the attack by the presidents of trade bodies as without foundation and voluntarily relinquishing the unofficial oath of office that has three times annually been administered to the councilmen after their election.

They said the oath was valuable as a symbol, but that it was not otherwise important and they could do their work as well without it. Their letter bore the plain implication that they considered the oath of office a petty thing for grown men to fuss about.

The voluntary oath of office was the central point of the drive made before the Commissioners against the council several days ago by the presidents of the Washington Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, Merchants & Manufacturers Association, Real Estate Board, Operative Builders Association and District Bar Association. In surrendering the taking of the oath the council members felt that they had "stolen the thunder" of their critics. The text of their communication to the Commissioners was in part as follows:

Cites "Vellied Attack."
"It has come to the attention of the Citizens' Advisory Council that certain members of some of the local business organizations, headed by Mr. Edwin C. Graham, of the Washington Board of Trade, recently filed with you a statement which the public press characterized as a 'vellied attack on the Citizens' Advisory Council.'"

"Using the press as our guide as to what was contained in the statement filed with your honorable body, only three points, in our opinion, are worthy of consideration, viz.:

"(1) 'That proposals have been made to enlarge the advisory powers of certain bodies representing part of the interests of the citizens of the District of Columbia.'"

"The Citizens' Advisory Council is not aware of any proposal to enlarge its powers. It was created at the instance of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. The plan governing its creation was submitted to and approved by the Commissioners. The approved plan provided for the name the council now bears; the duties of

MEXICAN FIRING SQUAD HALTS BASEBALL TOUR

Soldiers March Officer From Field; Shots Heard, Americans Flee.

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mexico is no place for baseball, at present, take it from a group of minor league stars who crossed the Rio Grande traveling fast after a series of exhibition games with a Mexican military team.

Jimmy Long, San Antonio catcher, related that everything was "fine" until next to the last day of the schedule in Mexico City.

With pay day only 24 hours away, in marched a squad of Mexican soldiers and marched away the officer promoting the games. The rattle from the guns of the firing squad had scarcely died away when the baseballers were putting distance between them and the Mexican capital. Most of them refused to stop here, declaring "Mexico is too close."

Last year the team, which included Long, of the Texas League; Mike Gonzales and Joe Rabbitt, of the Western; Lefty Gudal, of the International, and other minor league players, returned from the Mexican junket loaded with honors and with fat purses.

Guard Major Beaten In Colorado Riot

Walsenburg, Colo., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—More than 400 strikers today attacked with stones and clubs a squad of State policemen who attempted to raid a meeting place where coal miners were believed to be hearing an address by an I. W. W. leader.

Rioting spread to the street in front of the hall and reserve officers, police and sheriff's deputies were called to disperse the rioters.

GOV. SMITH GAINS BIG VICTORY; SAMPSON IS LEADING IN KENTUCKY; HAMPTON MOORE BADLY BEATEN

Republican 8,000 Ahead in Close Contest for Governor.

REPUBLICAN COUNTIES SLOW IN REPORTING

W. B. Harrison Is Ahead in Hot Mayoralty Fight in Louisville.

Louisville, Wednesday, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Complete returns from Campbell and Kenton counties, giving the Republican nominee a large majority in each county, put Flen D. Sampson 8,000 votes ahead of J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic nominee, for governor early today.

The vote from 105 counties, many of them complete, was: Sampson, 307,289; Beckham, 299,289.

Contest Very Close.
Louisville, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—In an exceedingly close race thus far, J. C. W. Beckham, Democratic nominee for governor, maintained a slender lead over his Republican opponent, Flen D. Sampson, as returns from additional counties were reported at midnight tonight.

A note of uncertainty was the failure of a number of counties in the Tenth and Eleventh districts, nominally heavy Republican sections, to report their vote.

William B. Harrison, Republican, apparently had won the majority race here over Mayor Joseph E. Cowley, Democrat, who assumed office last June after the State courts ousted the Republican administration because of a fraudulent election in 1925.

Returns from 99 counties, a number of them complete, gave Beckham a majority of 4,785 votes. The Democratic nominee carried the First district by a majority of 16,395; the second by 5,322; the third by 8,298; the fourth by 2,959; the seventh by 1,678 and the eighth by 3,840.

Sampson carried the fifth by 3,097; the sixth by 8,931; the ninth by 928 and the eleventh by 22,855. Returns from only four counties out of ten in the Tenth district gave the Republican nominee a majority of 4,196.

Hancock County reported a tie vote of 920 votes for each candidate. Four years ago the Republicans carried the county by nine votes, the totals being: Fields, Democrat, 910; and Dawson, Republican, 919. Spencer gave Beckham 1,310 and Sampson 694.

Free Text Book Issue.
One fact stands out in significance, according to political observers of the State party lines were torn and out never before in 25 years on the political battleground. Beckham, according to his supporters, will be undoubtedly stronger than the normal party vote in many rural communities, but these same supporters admit that there are other Democratic counties where he can not hope to poll the full party strength.

Sampson faces no better. In the Republican section of the State he has gained adherents over the normal number in some sections while in others it is indicated that he will not amass the count which had been anticipated. Bitter local fights in a number of Democratic and Republican districts have disrupted the State organizations.

Navy Officer Says Judge Stole Wife

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—John French, judge of the Somerset County Court, has been named defendant by Lieut. Walter Ward Broughan, U. S. N., retired, in a suit for $105,000, alleging the seduction and alienation of the affections of Mrs. Elena Broughan.

French, in a public statement today by County Clerk Fell, charged that between January, 1923, and May, 1926, Judge French called frequently upon Mrs. Broughan at her home, wrote her endearing letters, presented many gifts and took her on numerous motor trips.

French Pirate Craft Off Portuguese Coast

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The French schooner, Marguerite Suzanne, has been transformed into a pirate craft, according to news received from Cape Ferrol, Spain. Disembarking the regular crew on the coast, the schooner in the hands of the pirates is reported to have proceeded to Portuguese waters, constituting a menace to fishing craft and cargo boats.

The Portuguese maritime are taking measures to round up the vessel.

Two Killed at Polls In Kentucky Election

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Gill Lewis, 30, candidate for city councilman in a nonpartisan ballot election at Evans, Harlan County, was fatally shot by his opponent for office, Wayne Gibson, 45, according to word received here.

Arlington Vote on Sheriff And Prosecutor in Doubt

Fields and Gloth in Danger as Opponents Show Strength—Ball Reelected to Senate, and Reid to House of Delegates.

Despite the inclement weather, heavy votes were cast in nearby Virginia yesterday, due largely to the spirited contest made by Republican candidates in Arlington County. Fairfax County also turned out a heavy vote, although there had been comparatively little campaigning, while in Alexandria the vote ran fairly large with only one local office involved.

LODGE CUTTING SMITH'S EARLY LEAD IN DETROIT

G. O. P. Headquarters Claims 700 Majority for Dry Candidate for Mayor.

333 PRECINCTS LISTED

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—John C. Lodge, drafted candidate, began cutting down the big lead rolled up by Mayor John W. Smith, wet standard bearer, in today's nonpartisan majority election, as returns began pouring in from the outlying residential districts at midnight. At that time returns from 333 out of 606 precincts in the city, as unofficially tabulated by the Detroit Free Press, gave:

Smith, 52,387; Lodge, 50,139.

At the same time, Republican headquarters tabulating returns at the city hall claimed Lodge had assumed the lead on the face of returns from 482 precincts received there. The city hall figures gave:

Lodge, 51,900; Smith, 51,200.

In one precinct where Smith got 40 votes in the primary election as against 78 for his opponent, the mayor today received 253 votes against 50 for Lodge.

C. C. M'GOVERN HELD ALLEGHENY WINNER

In Race for County Commissioner, Despite Mellon Faction's Opposition.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—County Comptroller Charles C. McGovern, appointed by Gov. Pinchot, tonight apparently had won one of the three seats on the Allegheny County board of commissioners, despite the bitter opposition of the Mellon organization, in which the Mellons are a powerful factor.

With three candidates to be elected, McGovern, an independent, was running third behind the two regular Republican incumbents, Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock.

McGovern, long at odds with the Republican organization here, entered the commission race after he suffered defeat for the Republican comptroller nomination in the primary. His campaign was marked by charges of mismanagement and irregularities in the commissioners' office.

C. E. Hancock Succeeds W. W. Magee in House

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Clarence E. Hancock (Rep.), today was elected to serve the unexpired term of the late Walter W. Magee as United States Representative from Thirty-fifth Congressional district.

Mackey, in Philadelphia, Doubles Primary Majority

Is Elected Mayor by Majority of 140,000, With Two-thirds of Districts Reported—Beck Comes to Congress

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Harry A. Mackey, Republican organization candidate for mayor, today defeated J. Hampton Moore, independent citizens party candidate, by a large plurality, according to incomplete unofficial returns.

Mackey, who was campaign manager for Senator-elect W. S. Vare in the senatorial election last year, carried with him to victory the entire Republican ticket by substantial majorities.

Change in Term That Governor Opposes Is Snowed Under.

CLAUSES HE FAVORS RECEIVE MAJORITIES

Gains Made by Democrats in the State Assembly, Is Indication.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Gov. Alfred E. Smith, now serving his fourth term as chief executive of the Empire State, won another smashing victory at the polls today.

Almost single-handed he fought a proposal to amend the State constitution which called for a four-year term for governor, and the indications late tonight were that the amendment was overwhelmingly defeated. At the same time eight other proposed amendments, all favored by the governor, probably will be written into the law of the State, judging from the incomplete returns.

The governor issued a statement claiming that all amendments, except the one relating to the governor's term, had been adopted. The governor, oddly enough, originally fathered the idea of a four-year term, as part of his State reorganization plan. But the last legislature, dominated by the Republicans, put through a proviso that the election should be held during presidential elections.

Majority Now 300,000.
Returns from virtually half of the State showed that the voters had rolled up a majority of more than 300,000 votes against the amendment. The New York City vote was 374,598 against it and 136,537 for it. The up-State vote was: Yes, 108,908; no, 165,546.

With three up-State and two New York City districts missing, the Republicans had elected 84 assemblymen and the Democrats 61. The complexion of the last assembly was 84 Republicans and 66 Democrats.

The proposal to increase New York City's debt limit to $300,000,000 was leading by 504,901 to 299,591. The proposed amendment calling for increased salaries for governor, lieutenant governor and members of the assembly was leading by 558,816 votes to 232,680.

Gov. Smith in his statement tonight said that all proposed amendments to the State constitution apparently had been adopted, except the one relating to the four-year term for governor, which "has been overwhelmingly defeated."

Sees Popular Protest.
"The defeat of the amendment," he said, "must not be construed as indicating opposition by the people to the extension of the term of the governor."

"Throughout the campaign," he said, "I have been open to the possibility of a 'comeback' to political power, procured a mandamus order in Cuyahoga County courts, compelling

WOMAN OF 24 LOSES CONCORD MAYORALTY

Former Telephone Girl Defeated, 2 to 1, in New Hampshire Capital Election.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The first woman mayor in New England has yet to be elected. Miss Gwendolyn Jones, 24-year-old former telephone operator and graduate of the University of New Hampshire, who aspired to be first magistrate of the New Hampshire capital, was overwhelmingly defeated today.

Mayor Fred Marden, former police officer, was reelected, receiving 4,464 votes to 2,204 for Miss Jones.

In the nonpartisan primary Miss Jones ran second on the ticket, qualifying to be candidate today. One of her planks was that she would guarantee wiser expenditure of the public money rather than reduction of taxes.

Charges that strong-arm methods were employed in New York City's election were made tonight by two defeated candidates, one a Republican and the other a Socialist.

David P. Siegel, campaign manager for Frank P. Cantinella, upstate Republican candidate for justice in the Second Municipal Court District, said that "in one instance a gangster put a pistol against the stomach of a Republican watcher named Harry Garber and told him to stand still or be shot. As the one still standing, one came behind and struck him on the back of the head. He lay prostrate until a police officer and others picked him up."

In admitting his defeat as Socialist candidate for alderman in the Eighth District, Norman Thomas, once candidate for mayor, charged that "Tammany won by creating a state of terror in this district." He charged that while the vote was being counted in one of the polling places of his district an unidentified person threw powder or tear gas into the eyes of two Socialist watchers.

Republican Conceded In 2d Ohio District

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Charles G. Tatenhorst, Jr., regular Republican, was conceded to be in the victory by Cincinnati newspapers in the Second congressional district election to succeed the late A. E. Stephens.

Two hundred district precincts out gave Tatenhorst 30,383 votes against John C. Dempsey, Democrat, 12,716, and Harry H. Shafer, Independent Republican, 9,590.

TRACTION OFFICERS OFFERED AID IN CAR MERGER PROPOSAL

Members of Utilities Commission Willing to Act Informally in Conferences.

REPLY MADE TO LETTERS OF HANNA AND WILSON

Officials Make It Clear They Would Not Be Bound by Any Agreement.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday by letter officially informed officers of the traction companies that its members would participate informally, if desired, at any intercompany street car merger conferences, but that they would refuse to be bound by the results or to be deemed to be committed in advance to any merger plan they might later have to pass upon.

This action was taken in response to the letters last week of John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., and Harley P. Wilson, member of the boards of directors of the North American Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Hanna's letter had said the correct way to approach solution of the merger problem was by conferences between the companies first, after which an agreed plan should be submitted to the commission. Wilson said, in reply, that he hoped the companies would confer. The commission's letter to the Capital Traction Co. was as follows:

"We note that the management of your company has repeatedly stated its belief that a merger of our several transit companies would be beneficial to the public served by them, and has endeavored in the past to bring about this result.

"A copy of your letter was furnished by you to Mr. H. P. Wilson and we in receipt of a letter from him under date of November 4, 1927, in which he states: 'As principal owner of one of the utilities involved, I shall be happy indeed to participate in such conferences.'

"This commission is strongly of the opinion that a merger of the transit systems is highly desirable and will be glad to aid in the consummation of such merger. You are aware, of course, that this commission must pass on any such plan before it can be submitted to Congress, and that the public will, of necessity, be given an opportunity to be heard in the matter. It seems, therefore, that it would be inconsistent for this commission to take part in conferences at which a plan might be agreed upon which would later have to be passed on by us. We strongly urge upon you to confer with Mr. Wilson and representatives of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. to arrive at a plan which will be acceptable to a proper proportion of the stockholders of all three companies and submit such plan to this commission for its approval.

"We will be glad to offer any assistance desired in the formulation of such plans, and to participate individually in informal conferences, but it must be understood that such action on our part can not be taken as binding this commission to agree to the features of such plan as may be submitted as a result of your conferences."

Wilson also notified.

A similar letter was sent to Wilson. Copies of the whole file of correspondence were forwarded to the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

Maj. Clayton E. Emig, acting chairman of the public utilities committee of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, called on Ralph B. Fiehart, people's counsel, and told him that Fiehart and Hanzel, engineers working for the committee, would have their merger plan ready by the end of the week, whereupon Fiehart would be given a copy of the plan and the arrangements would be made for a conference on it.

Oldest State Official Reelected in Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.
Danville, Va., Nov. 8.—Stenoys Scott Hurt, oldest Virginia public official in point of service, was elected for another four-year term today as clerk of the Pittsylvania Circuit Court, a position he has held 54 years.

Four years prior to that period he was deputy clerk. He is 77 years old. He was re-nominated by the Democratic primary last August and had no opposition.

Col. Sherrill Casts His First Ballot

Cincinnati, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Col. C. O. Sherrill, Cincinnati's city manager, cast his first ballot today.
Prior to coming here last year Col. Sherrill had passed his life in the United States Army at Washington, D. C. Today, for the first time, he found himself entitled to a vote in any election.

ADVISORY COUNCIL DISPENSES WITH OATH

J. C. L. Ritter, of the Southeast association, and W. T. Betts, of the Northeast association, pledged the support of their civic bodies, and agreed to work with David Babb and L. G. Buehler, of the Lincoln Park Association, to end the nuisance. Protests against the dumps say that the odor from dumps permeates the entire vicinity as far west as the Capitol. Mr. Ritter declared that burial services at the cemetery were often interrupted by the smoke and odor.

The United committee will enlist the aid of members of the Anacostia, Trinidad and Randall Highland associations, which have already pledged their support. The matter will be taken up with the Commissioners in the near future.

The association opposed a proposal to rezoned Seventeenth and A streets southeast, so that a drug store might be erected. The entertainment program consisted of "past presidents night," a tribute to Guilford S. Jameson, retiring president. The history of the association, founded 21 years ago, was cited by D. A. Edwards, first president, George H. Judd and Mr. Jameson. A tribute was paid the memory of Ray L. Smith, deceased past president. The association presented Mr. Jameson with a brief case. J. L. Gammell is the new president.

WITNESSES GRILLED AT HEARING ON TAXES

its representative at any meeting looking to repeal of the Federal inheritance levy, he had called one.

He said his expenses in this connection had been paid by popular subscription, adding:

"I have done nothing that should not have been done. I believe that if Congress feels we have not acted properly it owes it to us to put us under oath and let us tell what we know."

When the governor asked Chairman Green if it was wrong to receive money for his expenses to Washington, Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking Democratic member, remarked that in his fourteen years of service on the committee the usual procedure was for it to summon witnesses and pay their expenses out of the Federal Treasury. It seems exceptional, he added, that an organization should raise funds for that purpose.

Garner declared that what he sought to develop was that the National Council of State Legislatures had received funds from the American Taxpayers Association, which, he continued, was supported by contributions from corporations and other bodies with selfish interests.

Withdrawn From Meeting.

Malton H. Morse and Lawrence P. Whittemore, representing New Hampshire, testified they had withdrawn from a meeting here of the council of legislators because it had decided to urge repeal of the estate levy and they could not endorse such action. Harry A. Ash, Chicago, inheritance-tax attorney for Cook County, Ill., also argued for retention of the tax.

Those urging elimination of the levy included W. E. Kay, representing the Governor of Florida; Ralph B. Knapp, for the Governor of Washington, and Frank Darin, for the Governor of Michigan.

When W. S. Baird, a member of the Iowa senate, took the witness stand to urge repeal of the Federal inheritance tax, Chairman Green, who also is from Iowa, and who favors retention of the levy, developed from Baird that the Iowa senate had voted in favor of repeal of the tax by a one-vote margin, and that the house had disapproved the repeal 92 to 8.

Baird told the committee he came to Washington on donated funds.

"They passed the hat and put in the widow's mite to send us here," he declared.

Baird said the purpose of the trip was to advise Congress how people felt about the estate tax, adding:

"You are our servants and we are your peers."

A. P. Frymire, New Orleans, representative of the governor of Louisiana, took the committee to task for the way it handled witnesses. He told Rainey his manner of questioning had "hurt" him.

"I am sorry the facts were embarrassing," Rainey responded.

"The facts don't embarrass. The way you asked hurt."

"I'm sorry if I offended, but I am going to get the facts."

"I don't feel that you intended to be abusive. I do believe you intended to chastise us," Frymire said. "I was disappointed, for I believe you could have obtained what you wanted in a different way."

The committee, which is holding hearings as a step in the preparation of a revenue bill, again today will devote itself to hearing views on the inheritance tax provision of the present law.

Brothers Shot Dead In Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Paul Collo, 36, and his brother Frank, 24, tonight were shot to death at a fish market, owned by the former, by two assassins, who escaped.

Police are convinced the slayings were the result of a family feud or the work of a "jack hand" gang. It was first reported Paul had died from the shock of seeing his brother slain.

REBUILDING BEGUN BY STRICKEN TOWNS IN WAKE OF FLOOD

Waters Everywhere Recede; No Further Danger Seen From Rivers.

MORE THAN 12,000 ARE RECEIVING HELP

More Men Needed in Work of Rehabilitation, Survey of Region Reveals.

Boston, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—New England's flood-stricken communities today took up the work of rebuilding their ruined homes and industries as the swollen streams fell back into their normal channels and communication was gradually restored with the outside world.

Tonight there were few places which relief agencies had not reached. As outsiders entered the last of the towns in northern Vermont cut off since last Thursday by the flood they found men armed with picks and shovels digging themselves out of the debris of wrecked houses and piles of mud, erecting temporary bridges and laying out roadways where much-needed supplies may be brought.

Throughout Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut the streams continued to recede and there appeared no further danger from the waters. The Connecticut was dropping all along its length and residents of towns and cities along its lower stretches breathed freely once more. Similar reports came from along the Merrimack in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

Vermont Officials Meet.

Vermont, hardest hit by the flood, was on its way toward recovery. Gov. John E. Weeks today called together the heads of state departments at Montpelier and set machinery in motion to bring order out of the confusion. He appointed Fred A. Howland emergency commissioner, and named county committees to carry on the work of restoring conditions to normal.

There were few reports of food shortage. Newport, Vt., where a famine was feared, reported that there were no fatalities and that outside communication had been established by which a food supply was assured.

There was talk of a special session of the Vermont legislature to take relief measures, but no action was taken. The Vermont capital received a supply of cash for its banks and Gov. Weeks was offered a fund of $10,000 for relief work by James L. Colgate, of Old Bennington, Vt.

The Army air headquarters, established at Concord, N. H., were ordered transferred to Burlington, Vt., in order to be in closer touch with the region seriously affected and the headquarters were immediately made to move all the aerial activities to that point. An Army pontoon bridge, was on its way from Fort Dupont, Del., to Burlington for use in restoring communications between Burlington and Winoski so that relief may be carried along the Winoski Valley, where the flood claimed 86 lives.

More Workers Needed.

As a measure of relief by which the railroads, their lines disrupted by washouts and wrecked bridges, might render aid the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington issued an order relieving the carriers of the routine restrictions applying to their operations and permitting them to use any routes available.

President Coolidge, guided by his knowledge of his home State, was credited with being of the opinion that no measures for future flood control could be taken. Undeterred by any fears of the future, he started an effort to rebuild homes on the sites which were swept by the high water.

An Associated Press-Massachusetts Institute of Technology radio station, forging ahead along the White River found men working everywhere to dig away mud and refuse. The only need expressed was of more men to do the same work. The situation was the same in Randolph, Vt., from which few reports had been received since last Thursday.

Fear of cold weather and the possibilities of disease spurred on the workers in the towns and the relief agencies. Generally little suffering was reported, however, those who lost their homes were being cared for by others less unfortunate.

Thousands Are Aided.

It was estimated today that upward of 7,500 persons were being given aid in the flooded regions of Massachusetts and Connecticut. The Red Cross alone reported 4,620 being cared for in Vermont. Hundreds of others are receiving aid from other organizations, municipalities and private sources.

In western Massachusetts the work of clearing up the debris was pushed ahead. State officials estimated that it would cost $250,000 to repair highways alone.

Boston itself faced the prospect of feeling the effects of the flood for a long time, with a prediction that the local milk supply, largely obtained from Vermont, would not be normal for six months.

CONTROL OF FLOODS CHARACTERIZED AS NATIONAL PROBLEM

Political Lines Disregarded in Arguments Presented to House Committee.

HARRISON AND WATSON ASK FOR LEGISLATION

Losses of Railroads in Mississippi Valley Are Cited by Other Witnesses.

(Associated Press.)
Continuing its hearings as a preliminary to the mapping out of effective means of flood control, the House flood control committee was told yesterday by a succession of witnesses that the problem, particularly as it affects the Mississippi Valley, was a national one with which Congress must deal.

Political lines were disregarded as Republican and Democratic senators and representatives, mayors from the flood zone, and other witnesses, argued that Congress should act without partisan ship and with rapidity on an adequate and comprehensive plan to curb the Mississippi's turbulent waters. State officials, representatives of chambers of commerce and railroad officials also were among the witnesses who presented a solid front for the National Government to assume full responsibility for flood control.

Watson Urges Action.

Senators Watson (Republican), Indiana, and Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, emphasized that Congress must pass flood legislation early in the coming session. Several representatives expressed the same view.

Diverging from the question of flood protection needs of the lower Mississippi Valley, the committee heard witnesses from Illinois and other Northern States present the problems of controlling the waters of the upper reaches of the Mississippi and its tributaries. Representative W. E. Hull (Republican), Illinois, headed the spokesmen from that section in stressing the need for protective measures.

The relief assistance by the railroads during the flood and their property losses of $10,000,000 also were related to the committee by a group of representatives of the American Railway Association and the carriers of the flood-stricken area.

Today Mayor William Hale Thompson, of Chicago, who headed a delegation of 1,500 persons, which came here for the start of the hearings, will outline his views to the committee. Although he did not speak yesterday, he attended portions of both the morning and afternoon sessions. Most of the members of the Chicago delegation returned home late in the day.

A woman familiar with the workings of Congress, Mrs. Genevieve Clark Thompson, of New Orleans, daughter of the late Champ Clark, Speaker of the House, told the committee that the flood problem, "a menace to 8,500,000 lives," must be assumed by the Federal Government as a duty of the Nation.

Railroad Losses Cited.

A. F. Blases, of Chicago, chief engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad and chairman of the American Railway Association's flood committee, read a report which revealed that 3,000 miles of railroad were destroyed by the flood, and of the $10,000,000 total loss sustained by the carriers, the Illinois Central, with $2,700,000, suffered the heaviest damage, while the Missouri Pacific was next with $1,002,260.

That the New England flood had further emphasized the national problem was the view of Robert Ford, of Chicago, chief engineer of the Rock Island line, who declared New England, through its disaster, now can realize the gravity of the Mississippi inundation.

Six College Students Held in Dry Raid

AMES, Iowa, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Six Iowa State College students, charged with maintaining a liquor nuisance at the Sigma Chi fraternity house, today were ordered held on bonds of $200 each pending a preliminary hearing tomorrow.

The students were arrested yesterday by prohibition raiders, who said they found a still and several bottles of liquor in the house. Fraternity officials said an investigation would be made, as violation of the prohibition laws is sufficient reason to cancel the chapter's charter.

Cadman Is Awarded 1927 Holland Medal

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—For his work in the promotion of unity among Christian churches, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has been awarded the annual gold medal of the Holland Society of New York. It was announced today. The presentation of the medal will be made November 22. Former recipients of the medal are L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad, and Henry Fairbank, president of the American Museum of Natural History.

ROOF GARAGE PLANNED AT NEW ARCADE MARKET

Blick Submits Proposal for Parking of Shoppers' Cars to Commissioners.

IDEA ADOPTED IN CHICAGO

The first commercial house in Washington to establish a parking garage on its roof for the convenience of patrons, will be the new Arcade Market at Fourteenth and Kenyon streets northwest, if plans submitted yesterday by John S. Blick, president of the Washington Arcade Co., to the District Commissioners are adopted.

The new market, which will be opened about November 28, has been built only one story high, and a ramp runs from the alley at the side of the new structure to the roof.

If the Commissioners approve of Mr. Blick's plan, and he is able to gain the consent of adjacent property owners, he plans to allow motoring customers of the market to drive up the ramp and park their cars while shopping. Traffic in the vicinity of the market becomes very congested at certain times of the day, and Mr. Blick feels that the roof garage will be a great convenience to shoppers.

While some garages in the city have established roof garages on which to store cars which have been turned in and which are being held for resale, no other establishment in the city has established a parking garage on its roof. The idea has been carried out successfully by merchants in other cities, notably Chicago, and has been suggested here several times.

Army Rifleman to Compete in Holland.

Gen. M. A. Reckord, executive vice president, National Rifle Association of America, has been informed by the War Department that it will cooperate with the association in its efforts to send a winning rifle team to the international competitions to be held in Quantico, Va., about July. Instructions will be issued directing that seven of the Army's best shots be sent to Quantico, Va., about April 1 for preliminary training.

SEAPLANE SETS RECORD IN MEETING NAVY TESTS

Iseman Makes 153.5 Miles an Hour in Take-Off With Load.

TRIES FOR HEIGHT TODAY

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A new world's record for speed in taking off in a fully-loaded seaplane was established at the Far Rockaway, Long Island, naval air station today by Lieut. John W. Iseman, who, it was announced, attained a speed of 153.5 miles an hour.

The record was made during the acceptance test on the first of a fleet of 130 Vought-Corsair planes for the Navy. The plane took off in five seconds.

It was announced that in addition to meeting the speed test the plane met the other requirements of the Navy and assured the carrying out of the building program whereby the Navy will receive the 130 planes within the next ten months. The planes will represent an expenditure of $2,500,000.

The Vought-Corsair planes were said to embody an entirely new method of gun placement. Although the machine guns point forward, the bullets do not go through the circle described by the propeller blade, resulting in the elimination of the complicated machinery of synchronizing the flight of the bullets with the revolutions of the propeller.

It is in one of these new planes that Lieut. Iseman plans to establish a new altitude record for loaded seaplanes tomorrow. Carrying a load of 1,100 pounds he hopes to reach an altitude of 28,000 feet.

The present altitude record, established in April, is 22,178 feet.

COOLIDGE CONSIDERS USING TARIFF TO PAY FARMERS FOR CROPS

Represented as Declaring He Has No Objection to Debenture Plan of Relief.

SUBSTITUTE SUGGESTED FOR McNARY-HAUGEN BILL

Representatives of Agricultural Associations Here to Confer on Legislation.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.
President Coolidge is understood to be giving serious consideration to a farm relief plan which would be a far cry from the McNary-Haugen bill, but in part be given to the American farmer in compensation for his surplus crops.

It is the so-called debenture plan that is understood to have gained favor with him. He is reported, in fact, to have told one man with whom he has discussed the situation recently that he saw no objection to it. Incidentally, Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, is one of its strongest proponents. Senator Borah, of Idaho, is friendly to the extent that he sees it as at least removing the constitutional objections to the McNary-Haugen plan.

Under the debenture plan the farmer would be given a certificate for his output sold in the world market, calling for the difference between the domestic price and the world price plus the tariff. Then he could sell these certificates to brokers or importers who in turn could use them in the payment of customs on goods they import. It would therefore mean that the tariff which the farmer now contends works against him would be used for the double purpose of raising the price of American industry, but at the same time compensating him for his surplus crops.

Revolving Funds Opposed.

There are indications that those at the Capitol who are seeking to bring about a solution of the farm problem are hopeful that the debenture plan may be the basis of an agreement. The day after the McNary-Haugen bill was introduced, the McNary-Haugen men have always contended the American farmer will never accept a subsidy and they have applied the term to the revolving funds which the administration has offered to provide in other plans which it has proposed. The revolving funds have been opposed upon the theory that any money taken from them would simply be loans, but the McNary-Haugenites have insisted that under the plans embodied in the bill there was no guarantee that the Government would get its money back.

The debenture plan does not involve any idea of the Government providing any money back. The Treasury would indisputably be the loser. But, its supporters contend, the principle is sound in that the money would come from a revenue source which the farmer contends is responsible for his troubles.

The representatives of three farm associations are in the city preparatory to a conference with the McNary-Haugen men that they can get together on a plan. One, the American Farm Bureau, has taken a standpoint attitude on the McNary-Haugen bill. On the other hand, the National Grange is just as strong for the debenture plan, and its spokesmen assert that if it is adopted they are ready to go after the whole tariff structure. The third organization, the Farmers Union, of which Charles S. Barrett, of Georgia, is president, has never taken a stand one way or the other although a number of its units, not a majority of them, have gone on record as favoring the McNary-Haugen plan.

Inasmuch as all of this might bear on the political fortunes of former Gov. Lowden, of Illinois, it is significant that Clarence W. Buck, generally reputed to be his campaign manager, arrived yesterday. Buck, a former member of the Illinois senate with Lowden, came here to dog the tracks of Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson. It is Buck's purpose to speak kind words about Lowden while the mayor's hand rent the air with "America First."

Thompson Against Lowden.
The mayor has said in no uncertain terms that Lowden will not have the Illinois delegation to the national convention, even if he has to enter the lists himself.

Buck revealed, however, that the Lowden supporters do not intend, despite this declaration, to let the delegation go by default. The mayor's name will be entered in the primary next April, he indicated.

"He was the ablest State executive of a generation," Buck said. "The people of Illinois will show their appreciation by giving him their unqualified endorsement at the presidential preference primary in that State in April, 1928."

Lowden, he said, "is a candidate for President, not because he will it but because of a widespread public sentiment in the Middle West has made him such."

"These people who want Lowden are in deadly earnest and he can't turn his back upon them. Agriculture has a serious problem that he bound eventually to affect all business and they think that he understands it better than any person in the United States and that this knowledge has enlisted his sympathetic interest. They think he can be nominated and elected."

Incidentally, Buck attributed a quotation to Lowden which would seem to indicate he is not of the single tracked mind on the farmers' problems, as is being charged by the Borah-Norris progressives. Lowden has said, according to Buck:

"There isn't any one remedy which will cure the agriculture situation, but what is generally needed is a new attitude on the part of our Government toward agriculture as a whole, so that our agriculture, which must always be the basis of our life, can be maintained on terms of equality with other industries."

Alaska-to-Leningrad Dog Trip Is Planned

Seattle, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Plans for a dog team trip from Nome, Alaska, to Leningrad, Russia, across Bering Strait and Northern Siberia, were announced today by Jack E. Dawson, of Nome. Max Gottschalk, said to be the only white man who ever drove a dog team across Bering Strait.

The expedition would cover 4,000 miles, and required about two years.

Hungary Restricts Liquor for Youths

BYRD REFORM PROGRAM ASSURED OF SUPPORT

Recently Deposed Treasurer of Warren County Is Believed Re-elected.

Special to The Washington Post.
Richmond, Va., Nov. 8.—Returns from today's election indicated that all three constitutional amendments submitted to the people were approved, although there was considerable opposition to the one designed to enable Arlington County to assess abutting property owners for local public improvements. The other two amendments apparently were approved with but few dissenting votes. One of these permits the fixing of the appropriation year of the State to coincide with the fiscal year. The other would give widows and wives of Confederate veterans the right to vote without payment of poll tax.

Although incomplete returns late tonight indicated that the Republicans had the day's election, the Democratic gains in the House, several of the Democratic incumbents seeking reelection had the stiffer kind of a fight with independent opposition. This was notably the case in Louisa County, where R. Lindsay Gordon, a veteran House member, was opposed by W. C. Duvall, independent Democrat. Fifteen out of eighteen precincts gave him a majority of only 150. The others, who were said to give Cooke sufficient majority to overcome his lead, H. I. Morgan, Democrat, was opposed by T. H. Potter, independent, in Botetourt County. Morgan was running slightly ahead of his opponent, with several precincts yet to report.

Mrs. Sallie C. Booker, Democratic incumbent, in Henry County, was trailing her opponent, Reed Stone. The Republicans seemed assured of only five members in the house and one in the senate, with a possibility of increasing the senatorial representation to two.

Gov. Byrd's progressive administration reform program was assured of cordial legislative backing, a large majority of those chosen being in sympathy with his plans.

Warthen Apparently Re-elected.
Special to The Washington Post.
Winchester, Va., Nov. 8.—Arthur Warthen, recently deposed as treasurer of Warren County by court order after the State accountant and board of supervisors had certified to alleged shortages in his accounts exceeding $50,000 and then reinstated upon giving $60,000 appeal bond, was leading his opponent, Byrne Downing, in election returns tonight. Warthen's friends were claiming his reelection by a safe majority, while opponents preferred to wait the final count. Those who returned from the polls in the county seat, which has a population of 1,400. It was said the town's entire population was gotten out to witness the hills and valleys of Warren County were canvassed for voters.

The Woman's Club of Lyon Park will hold its monthly card party and social tonight in the community house.

There will be a special meeting of the ladies of Lyon Village today at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Livingston. 110 Cal. street. The meeting has been called for the purpose of discussing plans for the organization of a woman's organization in the village.

Mrs. Livingston will make a report at the meeting of the citizens' association to be held tonight at 8 o'clock.

Arrangements have been completed for the fourth annual Masonic banquet of District No. 54 to be held in the auditorium of the Cherrydale Firemen's Hall November 16.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Patrick Henry School will hold a card party in the old Columbia Pike Schoolhouse tonight. Auction bridge and 500 will be played.

Buffalo Republicans Control New Council
Buffalo, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The new Council replacing the city commission form of government here on January 1 will stand 14 Republicans to 1 Democrat in the first election of the new council under the new charter held today.

The Republicans elected all five of the councilmen-at-large and nine out of the ten district councilmen.

Frank C. Perkins, who ran on the Republican, Socialist and Independent tickets, was elected first president of the new council, polling 75,135 votes against 51,559 cast for his Democratic opponent, Daniel J. Sweeney.

Republicans Retain New Jersey Control
Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—New Jersey Republicans have retained control of the State legislature and State finances.

Returns from today's election also indicate approval of the proposal to issue $30,000,000 worth of State bonds to complete the twelve-year highway program authorized by the last legislature.

LODGE CUTTING LEAD IN DETROIT CONTEST
Whether the interjection of the par-mutual question by Mr. Beckham had any effect on the vote was not clear. The Democratic candidate, J. H. Smith, stressed his opposition to the par-mutual betting laws of the State, maintaining that it allowed the Kentucky Jockey Club and a "corrupt lobby" at Frankfort to control the political destiny of the State. Judge Sampson remained silent on the par-mutuals, contending that it was not an issue in the election, but he has pledged himself to oppose the "lobbying of legislators" which have dominated the State Capitol.

The Republican nominee has based his campaign on pledges for free textbooks in the public schools and a good roads program.

In Louisville and the Fifth district, the bitter campaign for city and county offices overshadowed the State races. The local fight is the result of charges and countercharges which have been hurled by both parties since Democratic officeholders were appointed in June by the State courts.

OHIO VOTE IS BLOW TO SALOON LEAGUE
Supporters of Lodge, who refused to make a campaign in line with his views that an office seeker should not "urge" himself on the electorate, were confident they would switch the lead to their candidate. They maintained most of the Lodge stronghold were yet to be heard from.

Smith's supporters were jubilant over his early showing and pointed to heavy majorities in districts where he was expected to show least strength. They predicted final figures would show a big plurality for Smith.

Smith's victory in reelection on a program of liberality in regard to enforcement of the prohibition law. His "let well be" pronouncement was made after he had traded Lodge in the primary contest by approximately 30,000 votes.

Cleveland, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Smith's victory in his primary showing resulted from covert activities of the Antisaloon League, and other dry organizations and asserted his willingness to show least strength in opposition of the liquor laws.

Lodge, who has held public office over a 25-year period, declined to enter into a campaign fight, a stand he has maintained throughout his political career. He was drafted in the present contest and did not make a campaign speech or issue a written appeal. His supporters were reluctant to accept the liquor question as an issue and pointed out the Lodge had never publicly endorsed the dry movement.

PRINCETON EDUCATOR HELD ILLEGAL VOTER
Prof. Stephens, Grand Jury Member, Held in Jail to That Body.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Prof. Edward A. Stephens, treasurer of Hunt School of Princeton, and member of the present grand jury, was arrested today on charges of perjury for alleged illegal voting in District 1 of the Borough of Princeton.

The arrest followed a challenge by Philip Golden, justice of the peace of Princeton, who charged that Prof. Stephens was not a resident of the borough, but of the township. The board of elections at the voting booth allowed the challenge.

Later one of the election judges preferred a charge of perjury, and Prof. Stephens was arrested by a State trooper and held before Golden. He was released in $1,000 bond to appear before the grand jury.

Prof. Stephens said he told the board today that he is a legal resident of the borough, and that he is only temporarily living in his summer home, just outside the borough.

2 American Savants Given British Medals
London, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Two American scientists have been adjudged worthy by the Royal Society of high honors. The society has awarded the Hughes Medal to William David Coolidge, of Schenectady, N. Y., for his work on X-ray, and the Davy Medal to Arthur Amos Noyes, Pasadena, Calif., for his work in physical chemistry.

Corporation Attorney Ordered to Protect Interests at Hearing December 12.

Later, when the House Office Building to attend the Mississippi flood-control hearing. While there he discussed his offer of $10,000 for the best book on American history for use in the Chicago schools.

"I've offered $10,000 to any one who will give me the best book for the Chicago schools that will depict George Washington as a traitor and a rebel," he said. "We're going to award the prize to the author of the best book on going to replace every pro-British book in our school system."

Mrs. Thompson was going to judge the winner in the contest. Mayor Thompson replied he had not decided yet, but he assured his questioner that he could be the judge, or judge would be "prejudiced in favor of the United States."

Mayor Thompson was enthusiastic over the breakfast that President Coolidge tendered to him and fifteen other congressional advocates. He said it was one of the most "tasty" he had ever eaten.

The breakfast, started with a melon. Then came cream, butter, and eggs and toast. The next course brought Vermont maple syrup and pan-fried eggs. And, of course, there was coffee.

Guests at White House.
Others who attended the breakfast were Gov. Len Small, of Illinois; Representative Frank B. Rowland, of Kentucky; Thomas J. Hill, secretary of the Chicago Flood Control Conference; James H. Watson, of New Orleans; publisher and a member of the Mississippi Flood Commission; LeRoy Percy, former senator from Mississippi; Charles Burns, member of the New Orleans Flood Control Conference; John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor; Ash B. Benson, of New Mexico, member of the Mississippi Flood Commission; Charles M. Lewis, of Kentucky, and William H. Stuart, political editor of the Chicago American.

Once he returned to his suite at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday, Mayor Thompson plunged into a series of conferences with members of his party. The mayor's rooms adjoin the suite in which former Secretary of the Interior Fall now lives. Several members of the mayor's party have stopped at room 765 to ask about the condition of Mr. Fall.

Rider Is Re-elected In Cheyenne Race
Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—C. W. Rider, Republican incumbent, was re-elected mayor of Cheyenne today by a vote of 2,728 to 2,143 over his opponent, C. H. Holiday, Republican, in the city's nonpartisan election.

The fight to oust the "courtroom gang" in Arlington County had very apparent failed with but three voters of the county heard from except as regards the offices of sheriff and Commonwealth's attorney.

For the office of sheriff, Howard B. Fields, incumbent, was battling neck and neck with former Sheriff A. C. Clements. With J. H. Hensley, Roslyn Del Ray and Ballston still to be heard from, there was a difference of less than 200 votes between the two.

William C. Gloth, a close race in the fight for Commonwealth's attorney in the county. This race was even closer than the sheriff's race, with the same precincts still to be heard from. These included Varney's home precinct.

William C. Duncan, incumbent, had apparently beaten two opponents to retain his seat as county clerk, while the equalities had been obtained by E. Wade Ball, fighting to retain his post as county treasurer, and Harry E. Green, seeking reelection as commissioner of revenue.

It appeared from early returns that the following had been chosen members of the board of supervisors: B. M. Hendrick, for Arlington district; Edward Duncan, for Jefferson district; and E. C. Turnbuckle, for Washington district.

In Fairfax County road bond issue, the Lee and Centerville districts were both decisively defeated, while the school bond issue in Herndon district was apparently approved. This was for $10,000. The three State constitutional amendments were having a hard time in the county, with the result in doubt at a late hour.

William M. Farr was re-elected Commonwealth's attorney, although his independent opponent, E. A. Boyce, showed surprising strength, running 800 ahead of his ticket. E. T. Kirby, Democratic incumbent, was elected sheriff over B. W. Middleton. H. E. Hanes was re-elected to the house of delegates over J. Leon Freeman.

Others apparently elected are F. W. Richardson, county clerk, over H. H. Millard; F. W. Middleton, county treasurer, over W. R. Gray, and J. U. Kincheloe, commissioner of revenue, over F. J. Wagner. Supervisors of the county were elected as follows: Mark Turner, Dranesville; D. W. Buckley, Centerville; C. N. Vernon; Lee; W. F. P. Reid, Mount Vernon; C. H. Powell, Falls Church, and H. V. Leigh, Providence.

In Alexandria all three State-wide referendums were adopted by 85 per cent of the votes cast. J. Fred Birrell, Democrat, was elected to the 30th use of delegates by a vote of 645 to 371 for his opponent, Kemp Rush.

SENDS RELIEF FUNDS TO NEW ENGLAND CITIES

Attends Flood-Control Hearing of House Committee on Mississippi Plans.

From the time he left for the White House at 9 o'clock to eat a breakfast of pancakes and sausage, Mayor William Hale Thompson of Chicago was "not the go" here yesterday. Even so, there were those who thought he had done, so he decided to pass another night in the city.

Yesterday afternoon Mayor Thompson announced he had sent a check for $100 to the mayor of each New England city affected by the recent flood. The money, he explained, came from the balance of the Chicago Flood Conference and Relief Fund.

At the White House, the bustling Chicago executive hurried to the office of the Army Engineer Corps, where he talked with Maj. Gen. Edgar Jadwin, chief of Engineers, with regard to the metering of water in his home city.

FACING FIRING SQUAD, MEXICAN GENERALS JEST

Mexico City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The rebel leaders executed in recent days in the state of Vera Cruz faced the firing squads with fortitude traditional among Mexican military men.

Fernando Reyes, rugged old revolutionist of the Villa days, when he stood before the squad, took command and personally issued the order to fire. In obedience to his words the bullets plowed through his body.

Gen. Adalberto Palacios turned to the spectators when some joke caused merriment and said rebukingly: "This is no laughing matter."

Palacios, however, laughed himself when Martinez Pulido, who was standing beside him ready to be shot, asked Palacios for a few pesos.

"Be sure and pay them back," said Palacios, handing the money to Pulido, who gave it to the members of the firing squad as an inducement to take good aim.

To insure precise marksmanship and instant death Pulido buttoned his shirt, bared his chest, and pointed his finger at the heart as the soldiers fired.

MISSISSIPPI ELECTS DEMOCRATIC SLATE
Bilbo Returns to Governor's Chair; Woman Made Prison Trustee.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Their internal differences settled in a hot political fight in the August primary, Mississippi Democrats today went through the formality of electing their entire ticket of State officers. There was no opposition and the vote was light.

Theo G. Bilbo, former governor, takes the office again January 1, 1928, having defeated Dennis Murphree, incumbent, in a run-off of the August primary. They led a field of four in the first primary.

Gov. Murphree, who had been elected as lieutenant governor and became chief executive on the death in office of Gov. Whitfield.

In addition to the governor, sixteen other State officers were formally elected, including one woman, Mrs. W. A. Montgomery, a member of the board of prison trustees. No legislative or congressional elections were held.

Kansas City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A determined fight to bring the 1928 Republican national convention to Kansas City was decided on at a meeting of 150 members of the chamber of commerce today.

It was decided to raise a fund of $150,000 among business men to defray the cost of holding the convention should it be awarded to Kansas City. Arthur Hardgrave, president of the chamber of commerce, said the fund was in sight and that it was hoped to have all the money pledged this week.

UP and down the stairs—in and out of the house—she dashes on a dozen errands for you every day.

Little tasks—but all a part of her big job of growing up. And how much energy she uses up in this job! For every pound she weighs, she uses twice as much as you yourself!

One fourth of this energy comes from a single food—bread.

That's why good bread is so important.

Corby's Mother's Bread is especially rich in the food elements growing children need. Made of finer ingredients in big sunny kitchens, approved by dietitians as well as by parents, it gives the extra-energy childhood demands.

WIFE IS LADY-IN-WAITING

Melun, France, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Dis-honored checks and "beating" his hotel bills have got Don Fernando de Bourbon, Duke of Dura, and reputed to be a cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, in trouble. Fresh charges are piling up on the duke and his companion, Jaime Zulueta, self-styled marquis, arrested recently on charges of being vagabonds without visible means of support.

A Riviera business man has telegraphed the district attorney announcing his intention of prosecuting Don Fernando, who, the police say, uttered dishonored checks for 200,000 francs in the Nice region during a short stay there in October.

Zulueta will also be prosecuted for altering his passport and returning to France in defiance of Spanish law of expulsion issued against him some time ago.

The Duke of Dura came into the hands of the police on complaint of Fontainebleau hotel when he failed to pay his bill. The authorities were at first loath to arrest the Spanish aristocrat, but on learning of numerous warrants issued against him, they took him into custody. The duke and his companion, Jaime Zulueta, who he added had no right to the title of "infante of Spain."

Don Fernando's wife, a lady in waiting to Queen Victoria of Spain, who is reported to be in Madrid at present, may come forward, as she has done in the

THE BIGGEST QUESTION OF ALL.

Receding flood waters in New England reveal a picture of destruction and desolation. The Valley of the Connecticut and its companion streams has for generations been the center of industry. Railroads and manufacturing establishments line the banks and form an integral portion of New England stability. It will take time and money to reconstruct this region. There may be a period of depression in that section more severe than that which followed the let-down in the textile industry. New England may, however, rebuild without fear of the early recurrence of a similar disaster. Such a flood as the present one had not been known since 1854, and need not be expected soon again.

The devastation in the North should bring home, however, the peril under which the Mississippi Valley residents have lived for decades. It is not only when the earth can no longer absorb excessive rainfall that floods threaten there. Each year the inhabitants of the Mississippi watershed anxiously watch the banks of that turbid body of water. Work on the levees has never ceased since it was begun. Each spring there are breaks somewhere along the line. There have been other disastrous floods in the last two decades.

There has been some fear that members of Congress living distant from the flood area might minimize the danger, or seek to play politics with the problem of flood control. The New England floods served to reemphasize the necessity for prompt and decisive action. The representatives of the Northeastern States will have a bond of fellow suffering with those who come to Congress from the South. Such an alliance will brook neither delay nor equivocation. It should result in sober consideration and a real solution of a question that demands the service of every talent that can be devoted to it.

BORROWING THE NIGHT.

The traffic problem continues to keep a step ahead of all the expedients to which officials have resorted in an effort to keep streets and highways open. Police control, wider streets, arterial highways and synchronized lights are no sooner installed than the number of automobiles increases to a point which makes the congestion as hopeless as it was before. No city in the United States is without the traffic evil, and in the larger municipalities the time appears near at hand when it will be impossible to accommodate any additional vehicles.

The difficulty in larger cities is magnified by the mounting ratio of slow-moving traffic. Trucks and delivery wagons can not proceed at the pace that is normal for passenger cars. The freight machines not only take up more room, but due to their speed limitations tend to choke traffic.

Hence the suggestion is already being made that since the streets can absorb no more traffic, business must make use of the night hours for delivery purposes. The proposal is that all deliveries in the congested area be carried on between the hours of 11 o'clock at night and 8 o'clock in the morning.

This plan would not be practicable unless generally adopted. Many workers in the big cities would be forced to change from day to night work. Truck and delivery wagon drivers would not be the only workers involved. Night forces would have to be maintained at points of distribution and receipt. An increased strain would be put upon various branches of city governments, especially the protective departments.

It is, therefore, not likely that night delivery will be adopted except as a last resort. Yet the problem presses. There must either be more streets or more use must be made of those that exist. In many cities increasing or widening the present highways is out of the question, and multiple streets do not appear to be practicable. So the utilization of the wee small hours for delivery purposes may come about, in spite of all objections.

BILLY BARTON, ARISTOCRAT.

Billy Barton is going to Europe, and being just about the best cross-country horse that the United States has ever produced he wants to travel in style. Negotiations are now under way to obtain first-class accommodations for the equine hero on one of the five-day boats. These passenger ships ordinarily do not carry live stock. Yet Howard Bruce, of Baltimore, is so anxious to insure a rapid and safe journey for the pride of his stable that he has suggested that a stateroom be assigned to the horse.

It is no idle voyage on which Billy Barton is about to set forth. The American steeple-chaser is to be entered in the Grand National, the world's classic jumping race. In order that there may be sufficient time for acclimation, the horse and his gentleman rider will remain in England until the latter part of March, when the race is to be run. Only one American-bred horse has ever won the Aintree fixture. Mr. Bruce believes that his thoroughbred will be the next.

Honors such as a cabin aboard a floating hotel would be nothing new to Billy Barton. The winner of the Maryland Hunt Cup, Virginia Gold Cup, Meadowbrook Hunt Cup and many other important steeplechase events is accustomed to acclaim and consideration. The horse and his gentleman rider, Albert G. Ober, Jr., were the guests of honor at a banquet of the Elkhridge Hounds not long ago, so the sumptuous fittings of a cabin aboard a modern liner would probably strike Billy Barton as just the proper sort of surroundings.

THE THEATER TICKET TAX.

The nuisance tax against which complaint is most widespread is the tax on theater tickets. The last revenue bill repealed that part of the law that exacted Federal tribute from theater patrons who are unwilling or unable to pay more than 75 cents to "see a show." But every ticket sold for $1 or more is taxed 10 per cent. This comes out of the pocket of the patron.

The patron who is forced to pay 10 per cent on the price of the ticket that permits him to witness a high-class performance can not understand why the Government should "hold him up" for 10, 20 or 30 cents more after having collected its legitimate share of his income in the form of a tax, besides the fee on his cigarettes, his cigar or his tobacco, and a score of other intangible, involuntary contributions. Naturally he looks upon the 10 per cent as an imposition for which the theater is in some way responsible, with the frequent result that he cuts out the theater entirely and instead visits the "picture house" instead of the play.

The ways and means committee is about to give the opponents of this particular nuisance tax an opportunity to be heard in behalf of its repeal. It is a tax that is without just excuse, and its abolition will be commended by the entire theatergoing public as no other act of Congress could be.

WOMEN'S SPORTS.

It has taken some time for women to work out a place for themselves in the world of athletic sports. When they first entered the goal was, only naturally, the records and accomplishments of men. There was nothing else by which women athletes could gauge their progress and development. It developed quickly, however, that girls in attempting to copy the games and emulate the performances of men did themselves more harm than good. The physical and nervous strain involved was too great for safety.

In the last few years, under the leadership of such persons as Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Mrs. Henry Breckenridge and a host of others interested in the National Amateur Athletic Federation, another ideal has been set up for girls and women athletically inclined. In the majority of high schools and colleges now the motto is, "A team for every girl and every girl on a team." The federation also "believes in the spirit of play for its own sake, and works for the promotion of physical activity for the largest possible proportion of persons in any given group in forms suitable to individual needs and capacities under leadership and environment conditions that foster health, physical efficiency and the development of good citizenship."

The results thus far have been encouraging. Due to the fact that sports for women had not been thoroughly developed it was found easier to implant the new theories than it would have been after organization on other lines had been built. Experts in touch with the movement as a whole are satisfied that the general improvement has been advanced only at the expense of individual glory and pride. They have checked, they believe, the harm which imitation of men's games in a mannish way would have caused and have established sports for women on a scientific and enduring basis.

A SHOW FOR FARMERS.

One of the difficult problems confronting the farmers is how to care for their horses, now that the automobile has supplanted the horse and wagon as a means of highway transportation. A majority of farm owners, and many of their "hired men," own a flivver or a more pretentious car, but the horse is still the standby on 95 per cent of the farms. Tractors are useful in nearly all branches of farm work, but the horse is needed in pulling the cultivator, and no tractor has yet been devised that can be depended upon to draw the plow, harrow or hay wagon in hilly country.

With the coming of the automobile and the tractor the country blacksmith disappeared. "Under the spreading chestnut tree" is the filling station or the garage. Blacksmith shops are so far apart as to make it difficult for the horse owner to keep his team properly shod. To meet the situation, as far as possible, the Department of Agriculture proposes to teach the farmer how to trim the feet of his own animals and to attach shoes, which are now sold "ready to wear" in any hardware store.

Beginning on November 26 and continuing for a week the live-stock show will be held in Chicago. In connection with that show the department will conduct a school for teaching farmers how to care for the feet of their horses. This school for horseshoeing on the farm is only one feature of the department's exhibit at the Chicago show. There will be demonstrations designed to show the value of sheep as a clean-up squad, and the value of intelligent use of range pastures as opposed to haphazard feeding. The department will also show how hog cholera is preventable and that immunization and sanitary measures will control losses, which now amount to 400 hogs every hour.

SYSTEMATIC SAVING.

Citizens of Washington have put by during the last twelve months approximately $6,000,000 in the form of Christmas savings accounts. In 26 local banks more than 78,000 men, women and children have deposited each week sums ranging from 50 cents upward, to be distributed about the first of the month in time for Christmas purchases. In 1924 the Christmas melon amounted to only $3,000,000, so that in three years the community's Christmas fund has doubled.

The Christmas savings club plan is valuable in several ways. Primarily, it provides funds without which Christmas can not be celebrated to its fullest extent. Indirectly it serves to impress upon its members the value of thrift and demonstrates forcibly what can be accomplished by putting aside a specified sum, no matter how small, regularly.

The American bank has become more than a mere agency to receive funds offered for deposit. It has become one of the most powerful teachers of thrift. It has gone out to get business, realizing not only that additional deposits would produce additional income for itself, but also that thrift if inculcated in the people would reflect to the advantage of the entire community. By helping others the bank naturally has helped itself, but there is no one to begrudge it its own bettered condition.

The Christmas savings club idea has come to be applied to a variety of other uses. The public has adopted it as a means of raising funds to pay off its mortgages, to meet its insurance premiums, to purchase its automobiles and to meet other fixed charges. Thus it has become the reverse of installment buying, for by putting aside a certain amount each month until enough has been raised to make a major purchase the individual reaps the benefit of interest earned instead of having to meet the extra expense of interest charged. The club plan should be extended further. If the public would raise its money "so much a month" before the purchase is made there could be no criticism of installment buying.

SMOKERS ON STREET CARS.

Facing the problem of meeting automobile and bus competition, the street car system of Baltimore has devised a new type of car with a smoking compartment in the rear. Comfortable seats have been installed, a separate entrance provided and everything possible done to lure men to the trolleys. The first pessimist is Harold E. West, chairman of the public service commission. "I believe the smoking compartment will be an asset," he said, "but I am afraid the tired business man will have little chance to use it when all of the tired little flapper stenographers gather for a few puffs on their cigarettes."

The fearsome condition pictured by Mr. West is not a new one, although it is by no means common in the United States. Abroad, where smoking compartments are generally provided, the question of keeping out women smokers has been agitated for years. Indignant British citizens have written many letters to the newspapers complaining because the new order of things crowded them out of the smoking compartments into those labeled "no smoking," and many persons have suggested that the sexes as well as the eremites of My Lady Nicotine be segregated.

Is there any cure for the situation? Smoking by women is generally accepted. They smoke now, where and when they please, molested only occasionally by some puritanical representative of the law, whose ideas about smoking on the street are old-fashioned. A smoking compartment with comfortable seats is likely to be an irresistible attraction to women who enjoy a puff after a busy day. The smoking compartments in Baltimore may well prove popular, and under the ancient law of "first come, first served" the men will have to take their chances. Not all of them will object to the company of feminine smokers on the trip from the office to their homes.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENT INSURANCE.

The Washington Automotive Trade Association has added its voice to the chorus raised against the proposal to enact compulsory automobile liability insurance regulations for the District of Columbia. At the same time it has endorsed what is known as the Connecticut plan, whereby licenses of drivers who have figured in accidents are revoked until such time as they can prove their financial responsibility.

Opponents of compulsory liability insurance have raised every possible objection to it, but their chief argument is that it would diminish the sense of personal responsibility and thus increase accidents. Experience elsewhere has shown that this is not the case. Massachusetts has had such legislation on its statute books for many months, and is well pleased with the result. Accidents have not increased and in every case the innocent victim has been assured of financial assistance.

The fact that the Automotive Trade Association has offered a substitute plan is proof enough that in its opinion the establishment by one means or another of financial responsibility in the case of automobile accidents is desirable. Yet the Connecticut plan provides only for locking the door after the horse has been stolen. Financial responsibility is necessary in today's accident, not the one that may happen six months from now. This can be accomplished only in one of two ways—either the individual must insure against the damage he may do to the property or person of others, or he must post a bond at the time of taking out his license. Of the two plans, insurance is the cheaper.

The cost of insurance is a minor consideration. A considerable portion of the motoring public already takes this precaution. The compulsory liability insurance law is modern legislation which probably will be universally adopted within the next decade. It is the only practicable means of dealing with the situation that has been created by modern traffic.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Pegasus and His Square.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The constellation of Pegasus, which Bryant described as—

"That poetic steed,
 With beamy mane, whose hoof struck out from earth
 The fount of Hippocrene," is once more passing southward from the zenith toward the west. Pegasus is chiefly known because of its great square. One of the four stars forming this great square belongs to the constellation Andromeda, eastward. But since Alpheratz was formerly and is sometimes today called Delta of Pegasus, Alpheratz, Scheat, Markab and Algenib are correctly named the great square in Pegasus. Alpheratz, Scheat, Markab and Algenib will define the four corners of this starry square. It is indeed almost a square. At 9 o'clock, Alpheratz is at its northeast corner, Scheat at its northwest, Markab at its southwest and Algenib at its southeast corner. None of these stars possesses more than second-magnitude brightness, Alpheratz and Scheat having a little more brilliance than Markab and Algenib. This great square is situated in the eastern part of the constellation Pegasus, with the planet Jupiter shining brightly at present below it.

Aviator Reiser's Case.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In answer to an editorial appearing in your paper on Monday, November 7, entitled "Regulation of Aviation," I would like to bring forth a few salient points that were evidently overlooked in your article.

It was stated that I was charged with having flown my plane over a Virginia field at an altitude so low that I struck and killed a pony that was pastured in the field. The exact charge was "flying below 500 feet." The field referred to was not "a Virginia field," but Hoover Field, the airfield from which I was flying and upon which I had to land. The pony was not "pastured," but was trespassing on private property.

You also state that Congress should give the Department of Commerce the power, where it is lacking, to enforce "regulations designed to protect persons and property against reckless flying." The "reckless flying" presumably being a reference to my case. By all means Congress should, for that kind of flying can not be tolerated. However, at the trial, evidence was introduced that brought out the fact that I was attempting to land when the pony was struck. It is impossible to land or take off without flying below 500 feet. If this can be referred to as "reckless flying," then flying may as well cease.

The law provides that a hearing must first be given before a decision is reached when an aviator is charged with having broken one of the department's rules. I requested such a hearing. The request was ignored. I was fined and grounded without one. The department therefore violated the law upon which it stands. Nearly two weeks after the accident I was notified that I was fined $500 and grounded for three months. At the bottom of the letter of notification I was informed that if I still desired a hearing I would be granted one—to be tried before a judge that had already convicted me! What chance has evidence in my favor against prejudice already established. Is this justice? Is it right to arbitrarily impose a penalty upon a man equivalent to $1,700 for an alleged breaking of a regulation, which, if transposed into a case before a city traffic court, would only bring a $5 or $10 fine?

When to Spend Money

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN Bill was a young man he worked on a ranch, driving a tractor in summer and feeding steers in winter. He earned $40 a month and saved it.

The other "hands" spent their money having a good time—buying mail-order clothes, entertaining ladies, going to frolics; but Bill would not join them.

"I'm saving my money," said he, "for a trip to New York. I've got a hankering to see that town and see it in style."

Well, he saved and saved, and after a few years had passed he had money enough for his trip. But he didn't go. The possession of ready cash had given him ambition.

"I'll see New York all right," said he, "but that ain't all. I'll go right on to Paris. They tell me a feller can have one more big time in that town. I'll just keep on saving for a few years and then cut loose and celebrate."

So he kept on working and kept on saving. When his fellow workers went for a frolic they urged him to join them and spend some of his money, but he shook his head. "My time will come," said he.

It came but again ambition was greater than his bank roll. "Just a few more years," said he, "and I'll have enough for a trip around the world."

Five years later he died. He had a fine funeral. There were no relatives to claim his money, and his friends thought it best to spend it all for him.

That night the undertaker sat in an easy chair by an open fire and smoked a peaceful pipe. "I need a little rest," he mused, "and I think I'll take a trip to New York. May go on to Paris. And if travelin' suits me, I'll just go on around the world while I'm at it."

Bill, in the meantime, had reached the River Styx. As he sat on the bank he was approached by an ancient whose name was Charon.

"Going somewhere, son?" asked the ancient.

"I've always saved my money to take a trip," said Bill.

"Well, you're starting on a long journey now," said the graybeard. "But it isn't going to cost you anything. The fare is free."

Which would seem to indicate that a good time to spend your money is while it will buy you something.

The rich adopt the new things first, and in a few years the two classes may be called the plane people and the plain people.

trines of democracy? Is it constitutional for one department or one man to exercise all three powers? Regardless of party adherence, does The Post advocate these policies of procedure now being operated in the Department of Commerce?

STUART A. REISS.

Latin-American Propaganda.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is very evident that there is some influence at work in all the Latin-American states to stir up enmity toward the United States. The papers there are growing more and more hostile to this country, using their columns to inflame the people against us. They take our late action in Nicaragua as a text to prove that we are attempting to subjugate them, or to exercise an undue influence over their governments. We have grown rich and powerful while they have practically stagnated, and they are sore over our prosperity and growth, failing to realize that much of their stagnation is due to themselves, to their constant revolutions, while our prosperity is mainly due to keeping the peace.

This feeling is not of natural growth. The seed has been planted, is nourished and fed by some for ulterior purposes. A quiet but energetic propaganda is going on. We ought to command a much larger part of the trade of those countries than we do. Is the propaganda engineered by rival countries? Is it engineered by that same Soviet influence which has been industrious among ourselves? From the days when John Quincy Adams was Secretary of State in the Monroe administration we have sought to be on friendly terms with all the governments south of us. We may not always have been wise in our efforts, but the friendly feeling was always manifest. There is some influence working against us, and if we could discover its source and successfully counteract it, it would be better for us, and much better for them.

N. T. EMORY.

In Defense of Earl Sande.
 To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was very much pleased to read your editorial with reference to Earl Sande. Being an attendant at Maryland racing, it has been my observation that Earl Sande is one of the cleanest jockeys riding at this time and is still the idol of the race-going public.

(Where thugs and yeggs and other crass debris of the law go) Is in our worried midst today to speak of flood prevention (And also with a view to win the national convention.) And if, while he's preventing floods of various descriptions, He'd stop his flood of foolishness and wear some comptions Concerning fancied danger from a Brits' invasion, (And hatred for 'most everything of Anglican persuasion), The country would be grateful and would hail him as a friend For bringing silly vapors and rantings to an end. In size and heft that's physical, Bill's generous and ample, But, honestly, Chicago, do you wish him called a sample?

PRESS COMMENT.

The God of War.
 San Francisco Chronicle: It's a question for debate whether the god of war is Mars or Cupid.

Quit Picking on Congress.
 Atchison Globe: Speaking of legislation, you can't expect a guinea hen to hatch out peacocks.

It's Quite a Job.

Magazine Explosions.
 Detroit News: Mr. Wilbur never knows whether the next explosion in a magazine is going to be TNT or an admiral.

On-Time Lindy.
 Boston Transcript: Col. Lindbergh ended his 22,000-mile flight over the country just one minute ahead of his schedule. That young man may be relied upon to get there on time with time to spare.

Long-Legged Girls.
 Ohio State Journal: One indignant old lady, who has her opinion of the way things are going in this day and age, declares that she frequently sees six inches of stocking above the knee and six inches of bare skin above the stockings, but she may know some pretty long-legged girls.

Time to Standardize.
 Louisville Courier Journal: Here is something for Herbert Hoover to apply his theories of standardization to. The National Wholesale Druggists Association at their convention reported that they have to handle 2,500 different brands of perfumes, 1,200 varieties of face powder, 250 assorted compacts, 700 distinct lines of talcum powder, 650 styles of rouge, 303 makes of cold cream include within a stock of 1,426 toilet creams, 164 advertised dental creams, 212 hair tonics and 237 competitive shampoo concoctions. The retailers, rather than make room by moving out their lunch and soda counters, are buying toilet accessories "hand-to-mouth" fashion.

Knocking Wood.
 New York Telegram: The steel ship has succeeded the wooden ship because it is a better ship, a stronger ship and a safer ship. The steel car is succeeding the wooden car for exactly the same reason. The lumber trade could offer about as good arguments for building ships, cars and automobiles of wood, instead of steel, as it offers for building wooden houses.

The fact that three-fourths of the dwellings of this country are of wood is not particularly reassuring. It reveals nothing so distinctly as avoidable risk and stands for nothing so conclusively as the tribute which the public pays through unnecessary high taxes and insurance rates, not to mention loss of life and property.

Free Speech and Fascism.
 New York Telegram: Our fathers thought that free discussion was the best medicine for society and politics, no matter how disagreeable some of it might be.

They refused to risk the loss of constructive criticism in order to get rid of the other kind.

They tolerated the blatherkite to give men of originality and courage a chance.

They did this not only out of consideration to such men, but because they believed it to be essential to real progress.

Fascism has worked wonders during the last five years with its steam-roller tactics, but it has a long way to go before it can show results to compare with those of the founders of this republic.

HRDLICKA THINKS RACE DESCENDANTS OF NEANDERTHALER

Disagrees With Those Who Believe Species Threw-Back in Evolution.

HUXLEY MEDAL GIVEN TO HIM AT LONDON

Feels More Evidence Should Be Had Before Definite Conclusion Is Made.

London, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Challenging the general belief among anthropologists that the prehistoric neanderthal man represents a different species from homo sapiens, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, distinguished scientist of the United States, expressed the belief here today that existing evidence points to the neanderthal as a direct ancestor of ourselves.

The National Museum anthropologist made this declaration at the meeting of the Royal Anthropological Society at which he was presented with the Huxley Memorial medal and delivered the Huxley lecture.

While he felt that more evidence should be uncovered before a final opinion is reached, Dr. Hrdlicka declared meanwhile that the "less immature" species, than would be in that of a neanderthal phase of man.

He quoted modern anthropologists as declaring the neanderthal man was a "throw-back in the line of evolution of mankind, a retrograde 'sport' who was not a direct ancestor of ours, but a distant cousin of our ancestors, and one who died out suddenly and completely, leaving no descendants and giving way to homo sapiens from whom present man is descended."

Reasonings Rejected.
In disagreeing with this belief, Dr.
Hrdlicka rejected not only the paleontological, but the geological and archaeological reasonings which he said were used to differentiate the neanderthal from his successors.

As for the belief that animals,
such as the cave lion, bear, hyena, horse, ox, bison and reindeer, were all in Europe before Neanderthal man appeared there and continued after he had disappeared. Geologically, he added, there was no evidence of any crystal manifestations either near the beginning or the end of Neanderthal man's period, which would help to explain his coming or his supposedly sudden departure.

Regarding the archaeological evidence, the scientist declared that the chief evidence of the Neanderthal man is his housing, to the obtaining and preparing of food and to the manufacture of his tools, utensils and weapons. Taking up these points in order, Dr.
Hrdlicka said that the Neanderthal lived in caves and in the open the same as his predecessors and successors, and so it was with his food and tools, there being no marked improvement in those which came before or after.

Crucial Part Cited.
"The crucial part of the whole question of the Neanderthal man is, however," Dr. Hrdlicka declared, "that of evidence of the skeletal material."

It would probably be easy to harmonize all the rest of the differences between the Neanderthal and later man with the idea of a simple evolution and transmission," he said, "were it not for the obstacle of the Neanderthal man's skulls and bones."

Tray Impressions
by such marked differences from those of any later man that a bridging over of the separation has to many seemed impossible.

POIRET ASSERTS U.S. WOMEN ARE AFRAID OF LATEST STYLES

French Designer Points to the Evils of Sameness of American Dresses.

SPEAKS BEFORE LARGE AUDIENCE AT NATIONAL

Applause Sweeps Theater as He Creates Gowns on Living Models.

An appeal to American women to forsake their allegiance to "styles of last year" and to adopt the new and beautiful fashion creations, was made by Paul Poiret, famous Parisian creator of women's styles, to an audience of fashionable women and many men at the National Theater yesterday afternoon.

This lecture was given under the auspices of the Hecht Co. for the benefit of Columbia Hospital.

Poiret warned his audience that, like it or not, a new era in dress is before us, which will include the trouser skirt, and that women might just as well bow to the inevitable. The straight up-and-down figure, he said, is also doomed to give place to one that will conform more graciously to the drapes and folds he advocates. Incidentally, he demonstrated the trouser skirt effect on several models, and even those who dearly anything masculine in women's clothes could not but say his version of this kind of skirt is much more feminine than the short, tight skirt of some of the costumes we see every day.

U. S. Women Hard to Influence.

The French arbiter decried the fact that American women are hard to influence. He urged them to join in the crusade for the more beautiful, just as did the women of France in other days. We have plenty of beauty and style and money and our made-in-America fabrics are lovely, he said. He used entirely made-in-America goods in his demonstrations.

One of the evils of the sameness in women's clothes, M. Poiret pointed out, is the danger of slipping into the same category in regard to clothes as men, who have no way of varying their outfits except by wearing four buttons instead of two on their sleeves or having their trousers creased or uncreased.

Poiret Not Dandified.

Poiret is a well-dressed man, but not as dandified as Americans have become used to expecting Frenchmen to be. He wore a smooth-finished dark blue double-breasted coat, straight trousers and a diagonally striped four-in-hand tie in browns and beige, and black leather shoes with heels much as those our American business men wear.

He evidently regarded this business of woman clothes as a most serious matter and only smiled occasionally. The only foreign note about him was his slight accent as he read his prepared speech and the faintly visible goatee.

While he opened his address with compliments to the American women as makers of the mode, he did not hesitate to point their faults out to them.

Red Cross Asks Help In Making Bandages

The surgical dressings unit of the District Chapter of the Red Cross yesterday sent out an "O. S." for volunteer workers to assist in the workrooms where thousands of dressings and bandages are prepared for local hospitals.
The services of workers are especially needed tomorrow, and volunteers are asked to report to the local headquarters at 1000 Pennsylvania avenue, N. W., at 8 o'clock.

Special requests for dressings and bandages this year have come from Emergency Hospital and the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society, which it made by the Red Cross relieves the trained nurse personnel and leaves the nurses available for more skilled services. Permission has been given the chapter to set up a table in the Woman's City Club as an aid to the work.

Nurse Society Fund Contributions $20,153

A report of the campaign of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society for $65,000 to complete its 1928 budget was made at a meeting yesterday in the society headquarters at the Star Building, which showed that $20,153.16 in cash and pledges had been received thus far.
The report was made by Mrs. Amory Perkins.

Reports of the work accomplished by the society during the month of October showed that the nurses made 2,212 visits to a total of 2,553 patients. The campaign is being conducted through personal solicitations and mail appeals.
The members of the board of directors, of which Mrs. Whitman Cross, is president, are in charge of the appeal.

Albright Church Plans Community Gathering

Special ceremonies incident to the dedication of the new Albright Memorial Evangelical Church, Fourth and Rittenhouse streets northwest, will be continued tomorrow night at 8 o'clock with a special community night.

The principal addresses will be made by Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Federation of Churches of Washington, and Ernest H. Pullman, president of the Manor Park Citizens Association. The Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor, and members of the board, will receive a reception to members of the church and residents of the community.

Child Welfare Board Plans Rummage Sale

The annual rummage sale of the Child Welfare Board of the Children's Hospital will open December 5 at 914
E street northwest, and continue throughout the week. Mrs. Breckinridge Long will serve as chairman of the sale.

The building in which the sale will be conducted has been loaned by John Newbold. Mr. Arthur O'Brien will be in charge of the luncheon which will be one of the features of the sale.

Committee to Visit Wakefield.
Maj. Brehon B. Somerville, United States District Engineer; William Tyler
Page, clerk, House of Representatives;
Dr. Bushnell Hart, historian, George Washington Bicentennial Commission, and E. W. Donn, Jr., architect, Wakefield Memorial Commission, go to Wakefield, Va., birthplace of Washington, today, to make plans for preparation of the site for the bicentennial celebration in 1932.

including their disregard of the althou-ette in the selection of their underwear.

U. S. Afraid of Originality.

"Why," he queried of his audience,
"are you afraid of originality in this country of liberty? Your buyers come to Paris and will not buy the new styles because they say you women will say they are too extreme."

As the creator of the short skirt, which has surpassed his desires and intentions; of the hobble skirt of ten years ago or so, and the new trouser skirt, Poiret said that from experience, he knows that eventually all women come to wear the new styles, so why not when they are really new?

The most interesting part of the afternoon was when this sartorial artist draped and pinned and snipped long lengths of richly colored fabrics on the models, creating gowns for afternoon and evening.

Gowns Have Longer Skirts.

They were all longer of skirt than the ones we have been seeing recently;
more draped in effect and were either given the trouser effect by being drawn between the ankles or fastened about the knees. The enormous sleeves of brilliant red velvet on a black velvet afternoon gown made the women audience gasp with admiration and look astance at the rather small sleeves on the clothes they wore.

There was demonstrated a decided tendency to return to the Grecian effect in costume. An evening gown of lavender-blue transparent velvet had a long looped train and hanging sleeves;
and the imagination of the onlookers was directed by the artist to supply a bodice of silver lace and diamonds.
There was a breathless silence during the evolving of these styles on living models and much applause, for not only his genius as a designer but the for in which he manipulated the fabrics.

Mrs. Frank B. Freyer, of the woman's hospital, introduced Poiret.

JAMES C. IRWIN HEADS PENNSYLVANIA CLUBS

Boston Man Elected President at Closing Session of National Meeting.

James C. Irwin, of Boston, was elected president of the Associated Pennsylvania Alumni Clubs at the closing session of the National Conference of the University Club yesterday. He succeeds Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work. Bradford U. Eddy, of Boston, was elected secretary, and George F. Rand, of Buffalo, was elected treasurer.

A resolution was adopted requesting the board of trustees of the University of Pennsylvania to appoint a committee to confer with the alumni clubs on the proposals to move the undergraduate departments of the university from the present site in West Philadelphia to Valley Forge.

The proposal has already received the unanimous approval of the clubs. The section of Philadelphia in which the school is located now is fast becoming a business center and is not suitable for a college campus, it was pointed out.

Cooperation on the part of individual clubs and members to bring the best class of secondary school graduates to the university was urged in a resolution adopted at the session yesterday. The importance of appealing particularly to the preparatory school boy in preference to the high school student was stressed.
The conference opened Monday and the final session was held yesterday.

EX-REVENUE OFFICER SEIZED AT HOSPITAL ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Warrant Served as Powell Is Convalescing From Effects of Operation.

$2,500 EMBEZZLEMENT ALLEGED IN COMPLAINT

Removed on Monday From Position in Charge of the Washington Office.

Friends of H. Clay Powell, until two days ago in charge of the Washington office of the collector of internal revenue, posted $5,000 bond for him yesterday following his arrest on a charge of embezzling $2,500 in internal revenue taxes.

Powell will appear at a hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turgane on December 8, when counsel for the Government will ask that he be held for the grand jury.
Who the friends of Powell are, the warrant for Powell's arrest, issued yesterday morning by Turgane, was served on the former official while he was in George Washington University Hospital, convalescing from an appendicitis operation. Later in the day he was removed to his apartment at the Phillips Terrace.

Bond Given at Hospital.
Ordinarily Powell would actually have been taken before Commissioner Turgane as soon as the warrant was served, but in view of his weakened condition Turgane agreed to go to the hospital and accept bond there.

Powell's official title until last Monday was "assistant chief field deputy" in charge of the Washington office of the Internal Revenue Bureau. On that day Galet L. Tait, collector of Internal Revenue for the Baltimore district, which includes Washington, announced Powell had been succeeded by A. Park
Rasin, chief field deputy of the district.

Powell's arrest caused a sensation among the employees at 1412-14 Pen-sylvania avenue, who once called him "boss." His reputation there always had been good, and he was described as a man of "good habits and good morals."

That some such action was impending, however, might have been gathered from the fact that Mr. Tait recently came here from Baltimore and established a headquarters at the Pennsylvania avenue office. About five days ago, it is understood, Mr. Tait asked the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau to assign operatives to the case of Powell.

$2,500 Theft Charged.
The warrant was issued yesterday to one of these operatives, Frank J. Wilson.
It charged that Powell had violated section 47 of the penal code, and alleged that between January 25, 1926, and August 7 last, Powell "did embezzle, steal and purloin certain money, to-wit, $2,- 500, lawful money of the United States, which he had collected in his official capacity as deputy collector, the said money being due the United States as internal revenue taxes."

Mr. Tait issued the following statement yesterday:
"With reference to my recent removal of H. Clay Powell from the position of assistant chief field deputy, in charge of the Washington Internal Revenue Office, I would say that I am doing some necessary house cleaning."

A few weeks ago I started a careful investigation of my force of the Washington office, which, to my regret, disclosed the existence of certain reprehensible matters. I then at once asked Mr. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to instruct the special intelligence division of the bureau to assist my deputies in working them out.

"I have today turned over the facts and further action in the affair to the United States district attorney for the District of Columbia. A warrant of arrest will undoubtedly be issued. It would appear that the amounts involved are not excessive and are covered by bond of the individual responsible."

Powell is a native of Pocomoke City, Md., and had been deputy collector here for about five years. His wife died about three months ago, and he was stricken with appendicitis about fifteen days ago. He has two children.

HIS DOG BRINGS BACK HEAD OF SLAIN BOY

West Virginia Police Believe That Lad Was Killed by Moonshiners.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).— A boy's dog, bringing his master's head into a little Putnam County town, has started a trail of investigation which authorities think may lead to moonshiners who murdered the lad in fear that he "knew too much" of their operations.

Oscar Racer, 14 years old, who lived with his grandparents at Scott Depot, had been missing since he started hunting, almost a month ago, and searches failed to reveal any trace of him until last Friday, when the dog that accompanied the boy on his hunting expedition came into town bringing the lad's head. Renewed search revealed the body near a farm not far from the town.

Coroner J. W. Miller and Deputy Sheriff Walter S. Raynes, who conducted the investigation, reported today to prosecuting attorney H. A. Barnhart that no effort had been made to hide the body and that there was no sign of a struggle in the vicinity.
The skull, however, showed marks that indicated he had been struck by some heavy object.

Opera, turned her back on the classic dance today and announced she had signed to do a jazz song and dance turn with George Carpenter, the well-known former pugilist, who trips the light fantastic to the accompaniment of an orchestra now instead of the solitary bell that guided him on and off many a canvas.

They will open their effort had been made

Court's Dry Cases

Luray, Va., Nov. 8.—The Madison County Circuit Court, which began its November term today, will deal with more cases involving violation of the prohibition laws than ever before in the court's history. Judge John W.
Fishburne is presiding.

When Sheriff Frank H. Ball announced the opening of court this morning nineteen prohibition cases had already been docketed for trial. This number will be largely increased, according to court officials.

MARRYING PARSON FAILS TO WIN IN SLANDER SUIT

Jury Drops $10,000 Action Against Pastor Who Alleged Ethics Violation.

"SOLICITING" IS DENIED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., Nov. 8.—After a short deliberation the jury in the suit of the Rev. James M. Anderson, supernumerary minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, against the Rev. Edward
N. Parrish, pastor of the Elliott City Methodist Episcopal Church, alleging slander and demanding $10,000 damages, today returned a verdict for the defendant. The case, which originated in Howard County and was removed to this county, occupied two days.

The suit was based on a resolution passed by the official board of the Elliott City church, of which Mr. Parrish is chairman, alleging that Mr. Anderson was violating the ethics of the church by soliciting marriages from couples who came to Elliott City for marriage licenses. The resolution declared that "much of the meaning of the religious sanction to marriage is annulled when its performance is sold on the altar of greed by unscrupulous ministers," and requested high officials of the church to "bring influence upon the Rev. Mr. Anderson to force him to discontinue his marriage business, which placed the church and its ministers in a glaringly false position."

Mr. Anderson denied that he ever solicited a marriage. He admitted he approached couples after they had obtained marriage licenses and informed them that he was a minister.
Six witnesses testified that they had been approached by Mr. Anderson after obtaining marriage licenses and asked if they were looking for a minister.
Twenty witnesses testified for the defendant and five for the plaintiff.
Among the defendant's witnesses were members of the official board, who said they voted for the resolution in order to put a stop to the practice of solicitation of marriages.

Man, 55, Kills Wife, 30; Shoots Himself

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 8.—Mrs. Be-sie Warner Naugle, 30, is dead from a pistol wound inflicted by her husband, William Naugle, 55, who then turned the revolver on himself last night and is now believed dying at Community Hospital, Somerset. The couple lived apart with a nonsupport suit pending, and their children in institutions.
Naugle, a lumber operator, who had been living at a hotel at Somerset, sought his wife at her home and staged the tragedy. There were no witnesses.
Mrs. Naugle was twice married, the first time to a man named Yost, who shot himself. Her body was found by her daughter, Dorothy, by the first marriage.

Woman Exonerated In Poison-Candy Case

Special to The Washington Post.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Eva Hollowell, who was arrested last summer in Richmond on a charge of sending poisoned candy through the mails, was exonerated late yesterday when the grand jury in Federal District Court here returned the bill in her case as "not true."

Mrs. Hollowell was charged with mailing a box of candy containing mercury from the Norfolk postoffice to Robt.
Thompson at Aurora, N. C. The box was marked merchandise and was secured by postal authorities before any of the candy had been eaten. Post office inspectors claimed they traced Mrs. Hollowell to State hospitals at Williamsburg and Marion, where she is alleged to have been employed as a nurse and finally to Richmond.

U. S. TARIFF NOTE DELIVERED IN PARIS

French Office Believes Negotiations Will Proceed Under Favorable Conditions.

Paris, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Washington's latest note on the Franco-American tariff negotiations was delivered at the Quai d'Orsay this evening. It is considered here on the strength of Washington dispatches as merely registering observations of the last French note on the matter and as not requiring an answer. Comment on the document was refused at the foreign office, where it was said, however, that there is every reason now to expect that the negotiations will proceed under favorable conditions.

The Franco-American experts, having finished the list of American articles on which the minimum tariff will be afforded pending the negotiations, a decree putting the same into effect is expected momentarily.

Active negotiations, however, may be somewhat delayed by the fact that French tariff experts are already at work on a Franco-Belgian commercial agreement and may not be immediately available for negotiations with the United States. These experts will make every effort meanwhile to get through with their work on the commercial agreement as soon as possible.

THE WIFE and CO.

By LYLE HAMILTON.
(Copyright, 1927, by Eugene MacLean.)

Names and situations in this story are fictitious.

THE STORY SO FAR.
Molly Brown, a woman with abundant money, had been married to a man who had been a very successful business man. He had died, leaving her a large fortune. She had been married to him for many years, and she had been a very good wife. She had been a very good mother. She had been a very good friend. She had been a very good neighbor. She had been a very good citizen. She had been a very good woman.

CHAPTER XXV.

Brownell whistled. "That's right. When I got to the office this morning, everybody gathered around to bid me good-bye. I was just at the desk with my head down."

"Did she cry?"

"I didn't notice. Grabbed my stuff and beat it as soon as the gang got through."

At this moment Mrs. Potter called them to dinner. The meal was strikingly different from the one Molly had prepared the night before. The soup was delicious, the raw meat had become a fragrant stew, the coffee was delicious.

"If the high school had any money," Mrs. Potter said, as she took her seat, "they'd give girls one year's lessons in keeping the house clean and three years of cooking and sewing. They teach everything except what the pupils need to know."

"If they did that, girls wouldn't go to high school," Molly said. "Most girls don't want to cook and sew."

"Don't I know it?" The woman breathed heavily through her nose. "They all think they'll marry rich and won't have to work. That's what I thought. I never learned to make ginger even, until after Bill Potter was looking up at the daisies. Now I haven't anybody to cook for. I wish I had a man!"

Brownell laughed. "Do you mean you'd like to marry again?"

"Certainly," said Mrs. Potter, sharply. "Every woman wants to be married. Look at me, all alone! If I'm mad, I can't take it out on anybody—just have to sit and stare at myself. If I cook something good, there's nobody but me to eat it. If I'm a good mother, do I go to a movie and hate the heroine. Don't you hate the brainless critters they have for heroines?" She appealed to Molly.

"I don't think so," said the bride, considerably.

"Don't try to lie out of it! Of course you do! All women hate pretty women. You're too good looking to be popular, my girl."

"Why, thank you," Molly was pleased.

"Don't thank me. I didn't have anything to do with it. If I had my way, all the women in the world would be ugly but one—and that one'd be me."

Brownell was enjoying this greatly. "Why don't you go out and catch a man for yourself, Mrs. Potter?"

"She dropped her knife and fork and stared at him. 'Don't you think I've tried? But look at my face! She directed her frowning at her nose, her chin and her neck, one after the other."

"Who'd marry that face?"

"There must be a lot of men who would," said Brownell. "Think of the widowers and bachelors who don't get anything decent to eat."

"I'm not going to marry to be any man's cook," she snapped.

"But I thought you said, 'A woman marries to be taken care of and babied. She doesn't marry so she can work for some lazy husband who can't even find his own slippers.'"

"But—"

"Nothing!" she shouted. "I can wish I had a man to cook for, but if I had him I wouldn't cook for him. I'm just as modern as anybody, even if I do look like an old crow. She took a deep draught of coffee. 'If I marry again, he's got to hire a cook.'"

"I've got an idea," Mrs. Potter intervened. "Mr. Frazier down at Bob's office is a widower, and rich."

"In that case, he'll marry some chicken," Mrs. Potter surmised.

"No—the flappers have all been after him and he won't look at 'em. But he's lonesome—he needs a wife. He has a big house and three servants in it, and a chauffeur, and two cars."

Mrs. Potter arose and stooped to look into a mirror of the little sideboard that Molly had purchased.

"I've prayed for a husband like him," she said, when finally she returned to the table. "How old is he?"

"Oh, 50. I should think," said Molly. "He's a dandy looking man."

"I don't care a rap for his looks," declared Mrs. Potter. "He can be three feet high and as fat as an opera singer, and I'll care just so long as he can get me out of that dratted rooming house! Gosh, how I hate to take roomers—girl roomers, that is."

"Why don't you take young fellows?" Brownell said.

"I had some once. Filled the whole flat with 'em when I first started up. They didn't kick about the rent—I charged 'em a lot more, too. They got from the girls. But they didn't pay the rent. When I'd raise the dimes they'd laugh at me, and some fellow told me I was going to have him put out in the street—he grabbed me and tickled me until I promised to give him another week! Honest, you could have heard me yelling in the next county! I'm terrible ticklish."

"Girls are more honest," Molly said. "No such thing," contradicted Mrs. Potter. "They're more afraid of going to jail."

"You can't send anybody to jail for falling to pay rent," Brownell objected.

"No, but lots of girls don't know it. And those who do, they know they'll be disgraced if I throw 'em out and keep their clothes. Besides, they want the clothes."

The dessert was a dainty blanc mange with a bit of jelly floating on the top. Brownell and Molly ate it appreciatively, but Mrs. Potter sat there and stared at it. "I've got to keep my figure if I go after that—what's his name?"

"Frazier," said Molly.

"Frazier," repeated Mrs. Potter thoughtfully. "Mrs. Frazier! Still, I don't suppose I need to worry about the name. If he sees me once he'll run—especially if I smile at him."

She retired to the kitchen, where she began to wash the dishes, which Molly brought her from the dining room.

Before they were done the bell rang from the hall below, and Mary Holmquist announced through the house telephone that she was coming up.

"Hello, Swedie," Brownell greeted her.

Molly, however, threw her arms around the visitor and said, "You poor thing!"

The pretty blonde's eyes were red and swollen, and her lips had that looseness that comes to women in grief.

"What's wrong?" Molly pursued.

"I'm in awful trouble," Mary said, sinking to the bright yellow cover that stood beneath the window. Molly sat close beside her and Brownell stood in front, his hands held in his pockets.

"I haven't anybody to help me!" She took out her wet handkerchief and twisted it around a finger.

"Please tell me," Molly urged, putting her arm around the girl's neck.

"Listen! Did you tell me that Bob—Mr. Brownell, I mean—got an inheritance?"

"Not exactly. His father got one and gave Bob half of it. Why?"

"Have you spent it—spent it all?"

"No, only part of it," Brownell said. "Was it a lot of money?"

Swedie evidently was having trouble bringing her self to the point.

"Not a terrible lot," said Molly, cautiously. "She drew away a trifle."

"Listen, if I tell you truly that I'm in awful trouble, would you—would you help?"

"You bet we'll help," said the bridegroom. "Spill the bad news."

Molly got a warning glance at him, which he failed to notice.

"Well—can you lend me $500?" Mary Holmquist asked, her eyes seeking Molly's and then Brownell's in entreaty.

"Why—" Brownell and Molly said the word together. Then Molly continued: "We spent a lot for our furniture. I haven't got quite $500."

"Oh!" The girl covered her face with her hands. "I need $500. It's got to be $500. The doctor says I'm dying. He pressed her fingers upon her throat."

"But maybe $400 would help. Honest, I wouldn't come to you if I didn't need it. I asked him if he thought that he was going to take up my time forever and he simply said that he was not thinking of and could not afford to marry for at least three years. He makes a good salary and spends a lot of money. Of course I felt terrible and made up my mind then and there to give him up, but I suppose that I have had his companionship so long that I'm going to be very hard to break away."

"I have known a man at the office where I have a good position, and he has invited me to dinner several times, and I have always refused until last night when I went out with him. I don't like him very much, but before he said good night he asked me to marry him. I have talked it over with my mother, and she seems to like him. I don't like him, but I am coming to you."

"The question I want answered is, am I wasting my time with the fellow, or shall I wait for him?"

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

BREAST FEEDING IS BEST FOR BABY.

It is necessary for a woman to bottle feed her baby. If women would adopt the policy of getting experienced advice when the breast supply seems to be failing, the breast supply would be maintained in nearly all instances.

It is not necessary to say much about the advantages of breast feeding. Briefly, they are: The baby is healthier; he is not likely to have measles and some other dangerous diseases; he will have less bowel disturbance. Breast feeding is less troublesome. When the baby is fed every four hours and one supplemental feeding (one bottle feeding instead of breast) is used, breast feeding is not especially confusing.

There are some cases, though rare, when breast feeding is not possible. Dr. Verne studied 115 instances where bottle feeding had been substituted for breast feeding to find the cause. About one-half of the mothers were not in this hospital or center. One-half of this group had stopped breast feeding because some neighbor or some member of the family had advised that effect, or because they desired for themselves. A few said the physician had advised that the baby be weaned.

In one-half the instances the mother wanted to breast feed, but the supply was poor or the baby refused the breast. Among the causes operating in this group were anxiety, fear, nervousness on the part of the mother, too little sleep, eating too much. Feeding the baby to the breast too frequently and at irregular intervals was perhaps the most frequent of this group of causes.

If there is no regularity the mother's rest is broken and her breast glands do not have a proper chance to function. On the other hand, the baby's appetite and also his digestion are upset by frequent and irregular feeding. A schedule of feeding rigidly adhered to is a fundamental necessity in every breast feeding problem case.

Among the other causes are supplementary feed with mixtures that are too sweet, or too much supplementary feeding. In all the 115 instances there were but 9 in which the milk actually dried up long ahead of the scheduled time. Sometimes the trouble lay with the baby. A frequent cause in this field was nervous unrest. The baby was too restless, too ill at ease to nurse properly. The remedy for this condition lies in training the baby to calmness and peace.

WANTS TO PUT ON WEIGHT.
Miss F. B. writes: Will you please write something about gaining weight?

These are the dresses that Dora sent Mitzi from Paris. Mitzi is trying them all. The satin afternoon dress has a wide girdle of lace and a drape of lace down one side of the skirt. The pointed neckline is accentuated by pointed lines of stitching and by an outlined pointed yoke in back. Such a satisfying frock, Mitzi thinks.

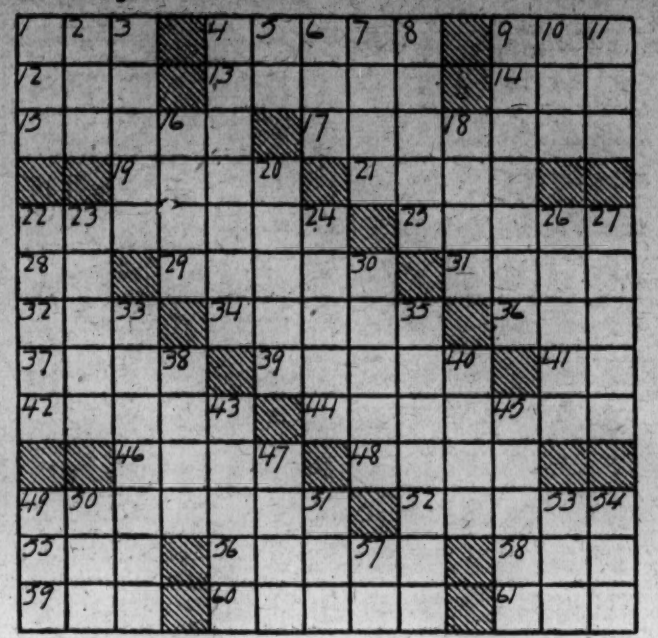

A knitted dress for sports or street wear is knitted to look like a tweed. Perfectly simple, but with a wide belt and metal buckle. Paris dresses may be plain, but they always have some little touch to make them quite different from other dresses, thinks Mitzi. Yes, they were all worth the price and even worth the import duties, too.

This is one of the Paris evening gowns. The triple neckline of sequin flovers is the sort of thing a French designer would think of. Transparent velvet is used for the undecorated part of the dress, but most of the skirt is made of glittering paillettes. It looks as though Mitzi would have to have a party for her new frocks.

Certainly, with all these new Paris dresses, Mitzi must give a series of parties. She thinks she'll begin with an evening affair. And in order to put herself in a properly partyish mood she puts on this crepe dress with embroidered sleeves and double collar and cuffs—and then begins her telephoning! Every one must come.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Four Years Later.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am 24 years old and have been going steadily with a young man ten years older than I for the last four years. We are not engaged and have never spoken of marriage. A few nights ago he remarked that he was not the "marrying kind."

This remark is what brought me to my senses, and to find out exactly where I stood, I asked him if he thought that he was going to take up my time forever and he simply said that he was not thinking of and could not afford to marry for at least three years. He makes a good salary and spends a lot of money. Of course I felt terrible and made up my mind then and there to give him up, but I suppose that I have had his companionship so long that I'm going to be very hard to break away."

"I have known a man at the office where I have a good position, and he has invited me to dinner several times, and I have always refused until last night when I went out with him. I don't like him very much, but before he said good night he asked me to marry him. I have talked it over with my mother, and she seems to like him. I don't like him, but I am coming to you."

"The question I want answered is, am I wasting my time with the fellow, or shall I wait for him?"

IRENE. After superstitiously impersonating the lover for four years he slyly slips

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SO. D.
The Parent Counselor

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers names are never printed. Only questions of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

YOUTH'S CONTRIBUTION DAY.
DEAR MR. DEAN: I am a freshman at college carrying sixteen points. I desire to win honors and expect to indulge in some of the following extra-curricular activities. What's my limit? And here are the questions:

1. About how many outside activities should I indulge in? I can easily carry and not slip up on studies. There are great social and economic values in widening my acquaintanceships, enlarging my experiences and trying your hand at other things than books. The fellow who can balance a program of study and outside activities is a wizard and we need wizards for leadership.

2. How much of these outside activities should be purely social? Social relationships which increase your contacts with people who help you develop character, personality and earning capacity are always worth while. No limit as to quality. Some as to quantity.

3. How many dates a week (if any) should I have with girls? The Lord only knows you will always find charming young women who are glad to be taken to dances, movies and dinners as often as you will go. They love to receive engraved stationery and telephone calls. Limit the girl to Friday and Saturday nights.

4. How late should I stay out and how much money should I spend each night? This question reminds me of the man who emptied a half a bottle of whisky and then filled the bottle with water. Again emptied it one-half and again filled it. How long before he had no whisky? The same with this question. The amount of dilution your studies will stand must be determined by experimentation.

5. Just how often should I go out with the same girl? (I know that I should not go steady with one or two girls.)

Outdoor sport gives physical development; work on college publication or newspaper gives mental development; through music or dramatic organization will add to your store of knowledge and cost little in money, and time spent has economic and career value later. Just what values does going out with one or a score of girls bring? Financial limitations are not the excuse. Disguise because girls have the happy faculty of depleting pocketbooks. You must be your own judge of how much indulgence in girl affairs you will allow yourself.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
Howling With a Purpose.
How much responsibility does a community have for its children?

Answer: A responsibility limited only by the town budget. The published values of a town's assets ought to have as its biggest item the number of wholesome, happy, intelligent and promising children. Instead of that it publishes the number of cows, sheep, oxen, hens, barns, dollars, debts and square miles. The biggest investment a town can make is on its children.

If one of the town's children turns out a Babcock we will have a new milk separator worth a billion dollars to a farmer. If one of them turns out a Mary Lyons we will have a new education for women. If one turns out a Burbank we will make thistles and weeds into a product fit for the table.

Who knows but the President of the United States and the premier of Canada for 1920 may now be a howling infant in your community. And what is he howling for? The Bible and learning about Jesus. An appeal to their sense of honor availed me nothing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER.
Answer: As you suggested, the wrong method was employed and I believe the results up to date are worse than nothing. Why not make a comparison between the Sunday school and the church? Both had a goal, both were laughed at, both were unknown in early youth, both worked more or less alone, but both had a most excellent compass. One compass hinged around laws of magnetism, what force was behind the one Jesus used? Take Tunny and Dempsey. Which do you desire and why? Is there any similarity between these two and David and Goliath? Coming right down to brass tacks had I rather be Gene or Jack, and why?

Making the Most of It!

—Here it is two weeks before Thanksgiving and our "Week of Appreciation" makes it possible to select from the new Fall fashions at savings of 20% or more! So over and over again we find people making the most of it.

Surely this is good judgment, for here are evening clothes for festivities close at hand as well as daytime clothes—with simply tremendous assortments to choose from.

3,100,000 Veterans Have Filed for Bonus

With a total of 3,100,000 bonus applications received to date, the War Department yesterday reminded veterans that under the law applications must be filed before January 1, 1928.
"It is estimated that over a half-million veterans have not as yet taken advantage of the benefits conferred by the adjusted compensation law," a departmental statement said. "Reader this number about 40,000 applications have been sent back to veterans for correction and have not been returned.
Present indications are that many veterans still intend to file their applications."

YALE BARS CALDWELL AS PRINCETON GAME NEARS

Team Balance Sought by Coaches

Successful Elevens Are "Starless" in Most Cases.

Princeton and Minnesota Are Examples, Says Eckersall.

By WALTER ECKERSALL. CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Unlike previous years, when stars were responsible for certain football elevens being contenders for national or sectional honors, teams which are now striving to win the championships have gained their present positions through team balance, the dream of every successful gridiron coach.

The coach who develops an all-around team will be more successful than the one who depends upon one or two players for his victories. This has been shown on many occasions and was particularly emphasized when Illinois defeated Michigan.

The Wolverines were without the services of Louis Gilbert, one of the keys to the attack. With this star out of the game, Michigan's offense lost its power, while Illinois' well-balanced team kept going at a steady clip.

Illinois never won a championship when Grange was a member of its teams, and such has been the case of other teams which boasted of extraordinary players.

In fact, most of the elevens which are in the race for championship honors may be called starless teams. This is especially true of Illinois, which is leading the pack in the Western Conference.

Coach Zuppke has developed an aggregation of team balance which is playing splendid football.

The Orange and Blue can not boast of a single star ball carrier, although the team has made several sparkling marches for touchdowns.

Princeton, one of the undefeated teams of the country which will meet Yale on Saturday, can not boast of a star who can be considered the equal of players who wore the Orange and Black of Princeton in former years.

Like Illinois, the Tigers are a fighting outfit which depends upon team play for its successes. Myles, Norman, Witmer and Baruch are a fine quartet of backs, but none matches up with stars of former Princeton teams.

Coach Bill Ripley, however, has this team keyed to a razor edge. The backs fight for every inch, and they are given the necessary support by the forwards.

There is hardly a better blocking team in the country, and Yale will have to be at its best to defeat Princeton on Saturday, in just about the most important struggle on the schedule of both teams.

Missouri, which is now in the lead for honors in the Missouri Valley conference, has no outstanding star. Coach Henry has four very consistent backs in Mehrie, Diamond, Swford and Byars.

They are fast, hard drivers, who will be a real factor in the game.

Ban on Sande Indefinite; Turf Heads Score Jockey

Noted Rider Weeps When Ban Is Upheld After Rival Jockeys Testify for Him; His Record Is Rapped.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The Maryland Racing Commission today refused to lift its ban against Earl Sande, famous jockey, whom the body deprived of his license for alleged foul riding at Pimlico last Friday. The commission said the order of suspension would be continued indefinitely but that it would not be made permanent.

This decision followed a hearing the commission granted the little turf idol today. Sande left the room in tears. "It's not fair, I didn't do it, and I don't want to be blamed for it," he said, brokenly to the assembled newspapermen. He seemed completely crushed as he left in company with three of the jockeys who rode with him in the Futurity last Friday, when the little

"When they came down from the judges' stand they were convinced that an outrageous foul had been committed, but before giving out their decision they sent for you to tell them your side of it. You had every opportunity to say what you wanted to say to them."

NAVY SQUAD GRANGE, SEES IN GOOD SHAPE MATES BEAT BEARS

Coaches Drill Team Plays in Game as in Rain for Michigan Game.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER. ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8.—A cold rain and consequent heavy turf greeted the Annapolis midshipmen today as they settled down to intensive preparations for the game against University of Michigan at Ann Arbor on the coming Saturday.

It will be the "rubber" game between the two institutions. Navy visited Ann Arbor in 1926 with hopes running high, but was beaten to utter defeat, absorbing a defeat by 54 to 0, the largest score ever rolled up against a Naval Academy Eleven.

Though today's practice session was greatly hampered by the elements, the players were drilled in special defensive tactics against Michigan's style of attack, as mapped out by Head Coach Bill Ingram, and Commander Jones Ingram, athletic director, who gleaned a lot by witnessing the Michigan-Chicago battle Saturday.

There is strong prospect that Capt. "Ned" Hannegan, will start against Michigan in his old position at quarter back. The trouble with his leg appears to be coming around nicely. He played in part of the game against West Virginia Saturday, and also engaged in some of the knockout tactics today, and performed well. In fact, the whole squad, with the exception of Art Spring, half back, who sustained a collar bone fracture against Wesleyan, is in good physical condition.

MONROE FIVE SEEKS GAMES. The Monroe A. C. basketball team having the use of a gymnasium on Friday evenings, is anxious to arrange games with 110-115 pound teams for the season. Call Columbia 8575-W, between 5 and 6 o'clock.

G.U. Will Play Shifts Likely Villanova, In Maryland Lineup

Game at Philadelphia for Catholic Title Is Proposed.

Little Drills Squad on Passes for Boston College Fray.

Special to The Washington Post. PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8.—Villanova and Georgetown will meet in a post-season game to determine the Catholic College gridiron championship of the East. Charles McGeehan, general manager of athletics at Villanova, today stated that negotiations with Lou Little were underway for such a game to be held at Franklin Field on Saturday, November 26.

The game will not be definitely arranged till after Georgetown defeats Boston College on Saturday. In Boston, so Coach Little, of Georgetown, gave McGeehan to understand. Despite the fact that the game is just in the talking stage, a great deal of interest is being manifested in the affair around Thursday.

It was thought that Villanova's victory over Boston, while Georgetown was defeating Lafayette, would make the game a certainty, but Coach Little is not anxious to conclude arrangements till he has hurdled the game at Boston next Saturday.

Ernest Cozens, graduate manager of athletics at Pennsylvania, has had no communication from either party as to the possibility of securing Franklin Field for the contest, but as no event is listed to be contested there that day, no difficulty is anticipated in that direction.

Confirmation that a post-season game with Villanova would be scheduled by Georgetown could not be obtained from Georgetown officials last night. The Post carried a report recently that the two colleges would meet in Philadelphia, but at the time Coach Little, of Georgetown, denied that definite plans for the game had been formulated.

Anticipating an aerial attack by Boston College in its annual game with the Eagles on Saturday, Coach Lou Little sent the Georgetown squad through an intensive drill in the defense against blocking football which found the Bears sluggish and almost ready for hibernation.

In the last three minutes of the second quarter, with almost 90 yards to go and no apparent hope of scoring, the Bears' defense was mission except by accident, the Yankees marched all the way to the end zone, scoring five touchdowns, and passing the first one on a yard pass, the first one gaining 45 yards.

The Yankees' first touchdown occurred when Mr. Ray Flaherty, late of Gonzaga College, playing left end, intercepted a pass from the Bears' quarterback, and threw it to the end zone. Flaherty missed the kick for the goal, but the Bears' defense was much surprised to find themselves entering the second period against the undefeated Bears ahead, 6 to 0.

On the next play, Kelly to Flaherty, the Yankees gained 18 yards. Good to tryon was the next one, good for 11 yards, and another transaction, the same pair went over the reaching hands of the yellow-backed Bears for a 3-yard gain, placing the Yankees only 4 yards out, with time left for only one play. On this one, Kelly flipped the ball overhead to Flaherty again, who fopped to the soil with the Yankees' second touchdown.

Driscoll's drop-kick for the goal tumbled end over end a couple of times and went slap into the sprawling mob, so the score was now 6 to 6.

The Bears then kicked off and as soon as the Yankees received the ball they began their remarkable pitching and catching demonstration. Grange, threw the first pass to tryon for the 45-yard gain, moving the ball from dangerous proximity to his own goal to the other side of the middle line.

INELIGIBLE STAR OF YALE TEAM

BRUCE CALDWELL, brilliant half back of the Yale eleven, who was declared forever ineligible to play for Yale yesterday following investigation of charges that he played at Brown while a freshman.

ARMY PRIMES U. S. OLYMPIC FOR ROCKNE AERIALS BODY GAINS HARMONY

Reserves Use Notre Dame Passes in Practice. Committee's Invitation to N. C. A. A. Has Been Accepted.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—With the mythical Eastern College football championship at stake in the Princeton clash next Saturday, Yale was dealt a surprising and stunning blow today in the disbarment of Bruce Caldwell, the Bulldog's brilliant half back.

Preparing for the classic encounter with Notre Dame, Coach "Bill" Jones of the Army stressed the importance of combating the South Bend offensive. A second string squad headed Notre Dame spirals against the regulars with some success.

Harvard was faced with the possibility of being without Crosby, a triple threat player, against Brown. Crosby's leg injury received in the Penn game has not mended as rapidly as expected.

French, Bell and Park, other casualties of the Quaker contest, reported for practice but did not participate. Punting and passing by Joe Potter featured a clash between team B and A scrub outfit.

Snow failed to deter the Penn State squad from preparing for New York University. Signal drill and special instructions for the line men marked the session. The New York Eleven worked on against formations expected from Penn State.

Brill, star half back at Penn, scrimmaged with the second eleven today. Coaches declined to discuss the shift. The coaches' mentors told their players through intensive defense tactics to be used against Penn.

Volley Ball League Planned by Y.M.C.A.

The Y. M. C. A. Volley Ball League comprising four teams, will get into action on November 18, when two games are scheduled to be played on the "Y" court. J. Richardson, P. Nettleship, W. Cunningham and C. Hathaway have been elected captains of the respective teams.

Final plans of the league will be completed this week, in readiness for the league's debut. Any one, interested in the volleyball sport should communicate with R. B. Morgan, assistant physical director at Y. M. C. A. headquarters, 1736 G street northwest.

Kaer, Drury, of Coast, In All-American Race

The Pacific Coast has at least two notable candidates for all-American football honors this season to add to the gayety of the annual gridiron selective process.

Southern California made the all-star array of 1926 with a fast-running back, Morton Kaer and the Trojans believe they have equally as formidable a candidate this season in their rugged and hard-punching captain, Morley Drury.

Drury has been doing some fancy ball-carrying most of the season, in helping to overthrow California. He gained 202 yards from scrimmage out of the team's grand total of 323 yards. He ran the team at quarter back that day, but is a half back by natural inclination.

Larry Bettercourt, captain and center of the powerful St. Mary's College Team, is another far Western star. Rated among the year's foremost linemen, he has at least one conspicuous rival in Dud Charlesworth, of Yale, pivot of the mighty blue line and outstanding snapper back along the Eastern front, which also includes a fine performer in Grigsby, of Georgetown.

Four New Grid Foes For Harvard in 1928

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Four new teams are on the 1928 Harvard football schedule, which was announced today. The newcomers to the stadium are the Army, Lehigh, North Carolina and Springfield, replacing Brown, Purdue, Indiana and Vermont. All of the 1928 games, except the one with Yale, will be played at the stadium.

Star Eli Back Ineligible, Is Edict

2 Games as Freshman at Brown Violated 'Big Three' Rule.

Tigers Now Favorites in Game Saturday; Subs Are Tried.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Fact outdid the fiction of the juvenile thriller tonight when young Bruce Caldwell, meteoric half back of Yale, was barred forever from Eli football, with the Princeton game but four days away.

At one dramatic stroke, which brought to light Caldwell's participation in two games as a freshman at Brown University in 1923, in violation of Yale's eligibility rules, the great career of the youthful back field flash was cut down in its infancy.

What soaring ambitions of youth for All-American fame and for the glory of great success against Princeton went crumbling into dust when the 21-year-old half back learned of his disqualification at the practice field late this afternoon, only Caldwell knew. Caldwell, he turned away and could not speak.

Caldwell himself was as surprised as any one at the revelation and its consequences, which came with the suddenness of a bombshell in Yale's athletic midst.

It was true, he said, that he had played for Brown once—years ago, when he entered and stayed only a short time. It seemed an unimportant episode, and he hadn't known it mattered. A student, even an athlete, often knows little of the formal regulations and other institutional agreements with other institutions on such points.

So Caldwell played three years with the varsity, finishing his letter against Harvard in 1925. He had a splendid season in 1926, and the climax of his career this fall with an exhibition of all around back field play that set sport lovers throughout the country to marveling.

When the loss of Caldwell Yale's stock took a decided dip, Princeton, a favorite for the classic game which this year must have an important bearing on the Eastern championship situation.

Even more evident than the general dismay and loss of the ball-carrying, passing and kicking wizard was a genuine sympathy for Caldwell and his thwarted hopes that he would try to fill Caldwell's shoes against Princeton.

Yale officials were prompt to verify the fact that Caldwell was barred by the new provisions of the N. C. A. A. Bulletin today and to act accordingly.

The rule does not bar Caldwell from baseball, in which he is star at second base.

Caldwell's disbarment from Yale football was announced in a statement by Prof. George H. Bingham, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic Association, pointing out the eligibility without misapprehension as to the full import of the rule.

The rule, announced as follows, was agreed to by the "Big Three" in 1923, and with the Harvard-Princeton break incorporated by Yale in dual agreements with Harvard and Princeton.

Any student who transfers to Harvard from Princeton after this agreement goes into effect shall be ineligible to represent Harvard, Yale or Princeton in any sport in which he represented his former college or university at any university or freshman team while playing against opponents not members of that institution.

Any Decision of Yale Acceptable to Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Bruce Caldwell's eligibility at Yale never has been a matter of concern at Harvard and any decision that Yale athletic authorities make will be acceptable "with perfect faith" to Harvard, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, said tonight. His statement was made prior to the announcement that Caldwell had been barred from further football competition at New Haven.

"Emphatically there was no thought of protest at Harvard," Bingham said, "as under what is left of the old 'triple agreement' (Harvard, Yale, and Princeton), each college is left to decide its own questions of eligibility without interference from the others. Whatever the Yale authorities decide in regard to Caldwell will be acceptable at Harvard with perfect faith."

Catholic University Holds Final Workout

Coach McAuliffe sent the Catholic University squad through its final scrimmage in the rain and mud yesterday in preparation for its game with St. Xavier's, at Cincinnati, on Saturday.

A squad of 24 players, accompanied by Coach McAuliffe, Athletic Director Charles Moran and Trainer Ted Mitchell, will train tomorrow for the Holy Cross game because of a bruised hip, was in uniform today, but did not participate in the scrimmage.

Cloudy Given Lex Ride by Fields

Winner Neck in Van Despite Late Rush of Favorite.

Fair Star Beaten by Fairy Maiden; Rain Mars Program.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, NOV. 8.—Lawrence Waterbury's Penalo was winner of the feature offering when he scored in the six furlongs of the Helpful, a special prize for the juveniles that was worth $3,010 to the winner. He had some help to his victory by the unaccountable bad ride of George Fields on Samuel Ross' Cloudy, which faded to the place, and Scotch and Soda from the Bagmore stable of Mrs. Margaret Emerson Baker, scotch third from H. P. Whitney's Pur. The sport was conducted under the most miserable weather conditions of the meeting with first a flurry of snow and then sleet and a cold rain for most of the afternoon. Fortunately, this had little effect on the track but it made the stands anything but comfortable for a crowd of surprising proportions considering the conditions.

When the entries were announced for the Helpful it was generally agreed that Mrs. Baker's Night Light was much the best of the company and there were several withdrawals, and later the High Time was also taken out, and the stable hopes were for Scotch and Soda. With the other scratches, a promised field of thirteen was reduced to six at post time.

There was some delay at the post, and, as the barrier rose, Manuscript, a stable mate to Cloudy, went in the light slightly and had to accept a considerable handicap.

Hildreth, the big colt that races for Mrs. Jack Richardson, also stumbled slightly, but he made a quick recovery.

Pur broke in good fashion and Scotch and Soda and Cloudy were also showing the way to Penalo, but it was not for long.

Cottrell rushed Manuscript along, after her misfortune at the break, and she showed a great burst of speed for a sixteen, while Fields permitted Cloudy to drop back badly, and it was long before he was able to get on his feet. In the meantime, Penalo had beaten Pur and he was holding her safe. Hildreth was doing his best, and Scotch and Soda was much in the running.

Penalo swung for home a length to the good with Pur and Scotch and Soda chasing him, and Cloudy was being badly messed about by Fields and still far back. Then when it was all as good as over, he was having his mount all over the course. Fields weaved his way through, and the Ross colt closed with a rush that saved him well lapped on Penalo at the end, but he had been beaten a neck. Scotch and Soda was just half a length further away.

As the race was run Cloudy was surely best of the company and the ride of Fields did not add anything to his reputation. The Helpful was followed by another first-class event in the mile and one-half, when the favorite made good, and William Dupont's Fair Star when she could only finish fourth to William Maher's Fairy Maiden, who was ridden by W. L. Martin's Fistic.

In this, Herodian was taken right off by Cottrell and he simply raced Fair Star into the ground. Through the back stretch the pair of them drew away into a long lead and finally the girl cracked, but he had not lost a considerable effort to put her away and while he headed for home, showing a length. Fistic, another that had avoided the pace, also closed resolutely to pass up Fair Star and take third, a length and a half further away.

Twelve platters of ordinary ability gathered for the initial dash on the card that was scheduled to be decided over the mile and seventy yard route and Danger Signal, installed a luke-warm choice for the number, was the one to account for the major portion of the purse when she made pace throughout the entire journey to finish with a two-length margin over Fistic, while Tyson, who began last of the field and a distant trailer in the early running, passed all his rivals but the first two to get into the third, a length and a half further away.

Fifteen juveniles, under the claiming clause, accepted a match for the six furlongs of the Druid Hill Park, the second affair of the afternoon, and once again the favorite made good when Lovelock was made the choice for the sprint and racing in close attendance with five others. Only a nose separated the pair at the end, while Charm was a fraction of length behind the pair for third honors.

E. M. Byers' Houston, who proved a dismal disappointment when he was installed a top-heavy choice a few days ago, raced in extreme contrast to that previous effort, with the result that he accounted for the mile and 70 yards of the fifth event for which he received but meager support, and his improved showing was the cause of criticism in the rear of the public choice.

Remaining off the pace out on the winner moved up with a bold rush when he was set back, came along with a well-timed rush to beat down Maxima, who had taken command from the latter two, and he weakened at the stretch turn. At the end he showed the way by a half length margin, while Maxima easily held the place safe from Tazewell.

In a race run in semidarkness, with the crowd in an uproar, and street lights burning, Pandera, one of the chief offenders in an eleven-minute delay at the post, won the final event on today's program, leading from start to finish under Workman's rousing ride.

Workman lost no time in getting the daughter of Peter Pan—Dendera in motion. She was more than a length ahead of Son of John at the clubhouse turn, with Gliston and Prince of Wales in the order named had the rest of the field strung out.

Pandera had increased her advantage

PENALO BEATS CHOCOLATE HELPFUL STAKES

Cloudy Given Lax Ride by Fields

Winner Neck in Van Despite Late Rush of Favorite.

Fair Star Beaten by Fairy Maiden; Rain Mars Program.

Special to The Washington Post.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 8.—Lawrence Waterbury's Penalo was the winner of the feature offering when he scored in the fourth of the helpful, a special prize for the juveniles that was worth $3,000 to the winner. He had some help to his victory by the unaccountable bad ride of George Fields on Samuel Ross' Cloudy, which raced to the place, and Scotch and Soda from the Gamblers stable of Mrs. Margaret Emerson Baker, saved third from H. P. Whitney's Pur. The sport was conducted under the most miserable weather conditions of the meeting with first a flurry of snow and then sleet and a cold rain for most of the afternoon. Fortunately this had little effect on the track but it made the stands anything but comfortable for a crowd of surprising proportions considering the fact that the weather was so bad.

When the entries were announced for the helpful it was generally agreed that Mrs. Baker's Night Life was much the best of the company and that the High Time colt was also taken out, and the stable hopes were pinned to Scotch and Soda. With the other scratches, a promised field of thirteen was reduced to six at post time.

There was some delay at the post, and, as the barrier rose, Manuscript, a stable mate to Cloudy, went in the air slightly and had to accept a roundabout handicap.

Hildreth, the big colt that races for Mrs. Jack Richardson, also stumbled slightly, but he made a quick recovery.

Pur broke in good fashion and Scotch and Soda and Cloudy were also showing the way to Penalo, but it was not for long.

Coltletti rushed Manuscript along, after her misfortune at the break, and she showed a great burst of speed for a sixteen, while Fields, permailed Cloudy to drop back badly, and it was not long before he was last of the company in the meantime, Penalo had headed Pur and was holding her easy. Hildreth was doing his best, and Scotch and Soda was much in the running.

Penalo swung for home a length to the good with Pur and Scotch and Soda chasing him, and Cloudy was being badly teased about by Fields and still far back. Then when it was all as good as over and after having his count all over the count, Cloudy came out and was wearing the winner down, came to the outside in the end, and was still far back. Then when it was all as good as over and after having his count all over the count, Cloudy came out and was wearing the winner down, came to the outside in the end, and was still far back.

As the race was run Cloudy was surely best of the company and the ride of Fields did not add anything to his reputation. The helpful was followed by another first-class event in the mile and one-sixteenth of the Sudbrook Park Pur for three-year-olds. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:35. Time, 0:23.5. THE phenomenal growth of soccer in Washington is a good indication of the progress made by the game throughout the United States in the past few years. The Intercollegiate Soccer Guide for 1927-28 states that in 1926 there were 26 colleges playing intercollegiate soccer, an increase of nine over 1925.

The Guide also publishes the list of colleges entered in the intercollegiate league and it shows that some of the most representative institutions of the country, namely Dartmouth, Harvard, Lehigh, Cornell, Princeton, Haverford, Swarthmore, Wesleyan, Wesleyan, Springfield, Yale, Amherst, Syracuse, Hamilton, Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Navy, Penn. State, Army, Williams, Rensselaer Polytechnic, Franklin and Marshall, M. I. T., Brown, Temple, Worcester Polytechnic and Toronto and McGill of Canada are playing the kicking game.

So far the sport has not been taken up by any of the local colleges, but at least two of them are known to have some exceptional material.

Maryland University could trot out a real soccer team at an hour's notice. "Knocky" Thomas, "Artie" Woodruff, Charles Fugh, Donald Adams and Dan Fahey are a few of the Maryland boys familiar with the round ball.

At Georgetown there are numerous soccer players who have played the game extensively in New England high schools. Both Lou Little and Curly Byrd are known as progressive athletic heads and it will not be surprising information to hear at any time that either or both schools have formed soccer eleven.

Local soccerists will trip the "light fantastic" over the week-end. On Friday night, the Clon MacLennan team will hold a dance at Gaval Hall and on Saturday the Concord Soccer Team will give a ball at Concord Hall, 314 C street northwest. The Concordians will also hold a rize bowling match in conjunction with the dance. District soccerists in large numbers no doubt will attend both affairs.

A crucial match in the junior high soccer series will be played today on the Monument Grounds, where Langley Junior High and Stuart will meet. Both teams have won three games, lost none and tied one, and the winner of today's game will be the 1927 junior high champion. Should a tie result, a second game will have to be played.

Langley won the title last year under the direction of Coach Ave, who is still leading the team while this is the first year of competition for Stuart. George Youngblood, who won fame as a grade school mentor, handles the Stuart team.

Clon MacLennan will have another chance at Waford, November 20, when the two meet in the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association branch of the National Amateur Cup tie games. Edward Kruse, one of the most popular of local referees, has been assigned to call the fouls by William Oram, commander of the district. Kruse handles the intercollegiate games played by Navy at Annapolis.

Fred Wilson, youthful Rosedale soccerite, has reached a greater stage of development than most of the former grade school boys now playing in the unlimited leagues. Eddie Giddings, Waford full back, is another product of local grade school teams making a reputation in the District "big leagues."

BUY IN WASHINGTON CAMPAIGN PROPOSED BY CHAMBER GROUP

Subcommittee Adopts Report Urging Patronizing of Home Industries.

CALLS ON MERCHANTS TO JOIN IN MOVEMENT

Schools, Colleges and Banks Are Mentioned as Markets to Be Cultivated.

A report urging the patronizing of home industries, with the recommendation that it be regarded merely as a commencement, and that further study be made and plans be devised for furthering home industry in Washington, was adopted yesterday at a meeting of a subcommittee of the committee on retail trade of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

In adopting the report, the subcommittee felt confident that the merchants and manufacturers of the city are in a position to offer as low prices as Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and other competing cities, and made the following recommendations for the consideration of the retail trade committee, and also the Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association:

"That the retail trade committee invite Lawrence Mills, secretary of the Hotel Men's Business Association, and representatives of other similar business groups, to appear before it for the consideration of this question.

Seek Market in Schools.

"That the Board of Education be requested to insist that the schools buy their supplies and have their printing done in this city, and that the pupils, acting as classes, be instructed to have their printing done and make their purchases, such as class rings, pins and badges, in Washington. This recommendation should also be made to local colleges and universities with the further object of interesting the student bodies to buy in Washington.

"That the banks be urged to have all their printing done in Washington, for the reason that the banks are purely local institutions, depending upon the people of Washington for their livelihood.

"That the merchants of the city adopt as once a slogan such as 'Buy in Washington,' or some other similar slogan, to be used in all advertising in newspapers, circulars and other printed matter.

"That the newspapers of the city be requested to inaugurate a campaign urging the patronage of home industries, and stressing the point that Washington is a city of over a half million people, ranking thirteenth in point of population in the United States.

Call for Concerted Effort.

"That the chamber send a letter to the merchants and manufacturers of the city calling this matter to their attention and urging them to make a more concerted effort toward educating the people to buy their supplies in Washington.

"That the chamber send a letter to the other civic organizations of the city, such as the Board of Trade and Merchants and Manufacturers Association, calling their attention to the fact that this matter is being considered by the chamber and asking them to cooperate in spreading the message to their own members.

"That the subcommittee urge upon the retail trade committee the importance of this subject and the need for launching a campaign having as its object the education of Washington people to the necessity and wisdom of dealing with the local business establishment.

The report will be presented at the meeting of the chamber November 15.

Thief Gets 15 Years On Seventh Conviction

Albert Cutler, colored, escaped a life sentence yesterday in Criminal Court because he was before a District of Columbia Court and not a New York court for sentence on a charge of housebreaking and larceny.

In sentencing Cutler to serve fifteen years, Chief Justice McCoy remarked that if he were sitting in New York State, where the Baumes law is in force, he would be compelled to impose a life sentence, as Cutler has been sentenced no less than seven times for housebreaking and larceny since 1901. The Baumes law makes a life sentence mandatory for a fourth offense. Cutler's record shows the seven sentences total 30 years. His latest offense, for which he was convicted, was the breaking into the home of Mack Davis, 3018 M street northwest, on September 3 and the theft of $33 worth of personal effects. Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins appeared for the Government.

Air Machinist Cited For Heroism in Crash

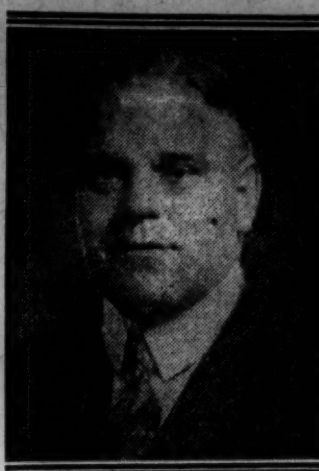

For his bravery in aiding his lieutenant in an airplane crash at Anacostia October 10, Aviation Chief Machinist Charles M. Berger, of that station, was commended yesterday by the Navy Department.

While flying with Lieut. Ernest W. Litch, in a Martin bomber, the plane crashed. Berger was severely shocked and bruised about the face, but in spite of his condition, and the possibility of the plane's catching afire, he endeavored to lift his unconscious officer from the plane. This being impossible, he remained in the plane and staunchly the flow of blood from the lieutenant's wounds until medical attention arrived.

TWO DETECTIVES RETIRED; ONE REDUCED TO RANKS

Christensen Sent Back to Beat on Charges Filed by Inspector Pratt.

OTHER SHIFTS IN FORCE

The detective bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department lost three of its members yesterday when the Commissioners retired Detective Sergeant Thomas D. Walsh and Robert Livingston and reduced Detective Sergeant L. Christensen to the rank of patrolman.

Christensen was demoted on the charge by Inspector Henry G. Pratt, commanding officer of the detective bureau, that he had told one hand-book operator that a rival had offered him $150 to raid the former's place, but that Christensen had not communicated the information to his superior officers.

Private James W. Casey was promoted to precinct detective in Tully's place. Detective Sergeant Walsh and Livingston were retired on recommendation of the board of police surgeons for physical incapacity.

Private Henry J. Doranbacher, Fred E. Fatnode and Archie A. McCall were demoted from motorcycles and Privates Ralph E. Burton, Marcel Causson and David L. Thompson were promoted in their stead.

Private Melvin P. Creel was suspended without pay to await action of the police trial board on charges of illegal possession, drunkenness and use of improper language.

MALL SITE SELECTED FOR GALLERY OF ARTS

Gift of Unidentified Donor to Be Constructed on B
Street at 12th.

Definite location of the projected National Gallery of Arts to be given Washington by an unidentified donor, thought by many to be Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, was announced yesterday as B street northwest, between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, original site of the Commerce Building, at the corner of B and D streets.

This location has been contemplated ever since relocation of the Commerce site along Fifteenth street northwest between B and D streets.

The estimated cost of the building is $10,000,000.

Site for a public auditorium is now tentatively selected near it, the arts building being situated west of the Agriculture Department structure.

In its plans for the Mall development the commission has opposed any construction on the Mall, between Seventh and Ninth street, desiring park space in that area.

Child, Hit by Auto, Suffers Skull Injury

Nina Gochenour, 9 years old, daughter of Beaury B. Gochenour, 5225 Conduit road northwest, was knocked down yesterday afternoon on Conduit road by an automobile driven by Guy Wherle, 18 years old, of Cabin John, Md.

The child was taken to Georgetown Hospital by a passing motorist where she was treated by Dr. Walter Bloesch for a fractured skull. According to the police the girl was walking along the side of the road and as Wherle approached she ran across in front of his car. Wherle's car overturned when he swerved off the road in an effort to avoid striking her, the fender knocking her down.

Store Manager Dies Following Robbery

Charles F. Waldron, 35 years old, manager of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Store at 100 P street northwest, who was assaulted in the store Saturday afternoon by an unidentified colored man, died yesterday morning in St. Elizabeth's Hospital from a hemorrhage of the brain.

The colored man had ordered some groceries and when Waldron turned his back on the negro he was hit over the head. The assailant then rifled the cash register of $59 and escaped in an automobile which he had waiting outside. Waldron's wife, Mrs. Estelle L. Waldron, 3017 Fifteenth street northeast, his two children and a helper in the store witnessed the assault and robbery. An inquest will be held this morning.

OVER HERE—OVER THERE—

THE MENACE OF 1914 AGAIN SEEMED TO THREATEN THE ALLIES, AS BRITAIN AND FRANCE WATCHED WITH ANXIETY THE GERMAN DRIVE AS IT PUSHED ON TO THE CHANNEL. LUDENDORFF, ELATED BY THE SUCCESS OF HIS LUS MOVEMENT, TURNED THE BATTLE FROM A SECONDARY TO A MAJOR OPERATION.

ON APR. 11, 1918 LUDENDORFF THREW FRESH RESERVES INTO THE WHOLE FRONT, LIKE A TIDAL WAVE THEY ROURED OVER THE BRITISH POSITIONS, AND OUT MANEUVERED THE WEARY TOMMIES.

THE GERMAN MASSES, PRESSING ON IN CLOSE FORMATION BULGED OUT THE BRITISH FRONT. GAPS OPENED, AND THE GERMANS PUSHED THROUGH. AT EVERY POINT THE ADVANCE WAS MET BY HEROIC RESISTANCE.

OUTNUMBERED, WEAK AND BLEEDING THE BRITISH WERE FORCED OUT OF ONE POSITION AFTER ANOTHER AS THE GERMANS PRESSED ON TOWARDS HAZEBROUCK AND ITS VITAL RAILWAYS. BY APRIL 12, 1918 THE SITUATION WAS ACUTE.

IN A LAST DESPERATE EFFORT TO STEM THE GERMAN TIDE, HAIG ISSUED HIS HISTORIC APPEAL TO HIS ARMY. "THERE IS NO OTHER COURSE OPEN TO US BUT TO FIGHT IT OUT—WITH OUR BACKS TO THE WALL, EACH ONE OF US MUST FIGHT TO THE END."
